THIS WORLD OF OURS

People and Things

LINDSAY, Ont. — Two women matadors were due today from Mexico for Canada's first bullfight.

Elizabeth Bilbao, formerly of Toronto, and Jean Román of Detroit will be briefed on the condition and individual characteristics of the six bulls they are to fight without sword or banderillas.

Matadors George Luis Bernal and Gilberto Azcona, both of Mexico City, who arrived July 21, say the bulls are in top shape and pawing the ground in anticipation of battle.

Doing almost the same thing are members of the chamber of commerce who say earlier fears of poor attendance have been dispelled.

Town bakeries are making tortillas, Mexican recordings are selling well in music stores and the public library has been cleaned out of books on bullfighting.

In bloodless fights the bull is "killed" when it is so befuddled by the matador that he is able to lean over the horns and slap it on the neck.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Tifford Townsend is back in court on a moonshine charge.

Townsend is a spry 94, and the last time he was picked up for making moonshine liquor was in 1878, when he was a boy of 14.

That time a federal judge "found me not guilty but gave me a kick in the seat of the pants on any way out."

PORT ANGELES, Wash. — Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court stepped off a snappy half-dozen miles Wednesday at the head of his hiking party and made camp on Cedar Creek shortly after noon.

The hiking justice and about 60 followers are making the trek to dramatize a protest against a proposed coastal highway. Their sponsors are the Wilderness Society and the American Federation of Outdoor Clubs.

They are following a route through the wilderness area which would be marred—they say—by a highway.

HINCKLEY, England. — Wedding cakes bearing the word "congratulations" and divorce cakes inscribed "whoopie" went on sale here Wednesday.

HARTFORD, Conn. — Mrs. James V. Fearon has seven children. But the eldest is only three years old.

The chronology runs like this:

Five years ago—married. Three years ago—a daughter born. Two years ago—a son born. Last Aug. 29—triplets. And Monday night—twins.

Liberal Challenges Election of Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal J. W. Pickersgill charged today in the Commons that two cabinet ministers — Hon. W. J. Brown and Hon. J. M. Macdonnell — are not legally qualified to sit in Parliament.

He said the two ministers, likely unknowingly, contravened the Canada Elections Act in the March 31 general election.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Election Act forbids any candidate from receiving a salary from the crown. The exception to this was cabinet ministers, but not ministers without portfolio.

Mr. Brown and Mr. Macdonnell are ministers without portfolio.

Mr. Pickersgill said that after Parliament was dissolved last Feb. 1 the government had to pay the salaries of Mr. Brown and Mr. Macdonnell through governor-general's warrants because parliament had made no provision for paying them.

He said the cabinet "handed out money to two of themselves

Jazz Concert Season Opens Next Month

Late September was chosen by Victoria Jazz Society Wednesday as starting time for monthly concerts planned for the 1958-59 season.

The club's annual meeting at Club Tango elected former vice-president George Heller as its new president; Ab Kent vice-president, and re-elected Barbara Vold and Bob Keziere as secretary and treasurer respectively.

Directors will be named at the next meeting, Sept. 3, at Club Tango.

The society hopes to obtain American and Canadian talent in addition to local musicians for the season's concerts.

Sudan Bans Flights

LONDON (AP) — Sudan has banned flights over its territory by British aircraft carrying troops or military equipment, the foreign office disclosed today.

Without any legislative sanction

The two ministers had received their salaries as election candidates "in defiance of the Canada Elections Act."

Mr. Pickersgill said he was not trying to upset the election of the two ministers but the government had used an "underhand method of procedure" which was "highly objectionable."

Treaty Association To Honor Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal Leader Lester B. Pearson will deliver the opening address at the annual meeting of the Atlantic Treaty Association at Boston Sept. 22, it was learned Wednesday.

The 1957 Nobel Peace Prize winner, president of that non-official body made up of persons interested in North Atlantic Treaty objectives, also will be honored that evening at a dinner given by the association's American council.

CNE Opened As John D. Beats Rain

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker officially opened the 80th Canadian National Exhibition Wednesday just seconds before a thunderstorm sent thousands of spectators scurrying for cover.

The prime minister was piped onto the 350-acre fairgrounds shortly before noon. He reviewed a tri-service guard of honor drawn up in front of the year-old Queen Elizabeth Building and then attended the daily directors' luncheon.

A light rain fell intermittently sending the opening-day crowd into the buildings, but let up just before the official party arrived for the opening ceremonies.

would limit their floor time to allow an early vote.

Still before the assembly, besides the Norway-Canada compromise which makes no reference to withdrawal of the British and American forces from Jordan and Lebanon, is the resolution Gromyko put forward in his first speech in the debate last week. This would have the assembly call for a withdrawal as a first step in any kind of settlement under the UN.

The Arab resolution's wording, it was understood before its formal presentation, avoided any direct reference to withdrawal. It stressed the mutual non-aggression angle to the extent that Britain and the U.S. could see fit to get out soon if all the Arab governments including Jordan and Lebanon agree to it.

Lebanon. It was known, was ready to accept this assurance from her neighbors. It was felt that Britain could put enough influence on King Hussein to bring about Jordanian support.

A Guiding Hand Rebuilds Family

CASE OF THE C. FAMILY

BY DAVID COWLISHAW

The C. family came to the attention of the Community Chest when the police notified the Family and Children's Service they were arresting Mrs. C. following the death of her baby from malnutrition.

"When we visited the home, we found that Mrs. C. was a slatternly woman" in her middle forties, who habitually was more interested in drinking than in looking after her children. Mr. C. had been dead for two years.

"While he was alive he kept his family well. He was an expert carpenter and a good father, being genuinely interested in the children. When his good influence was lost, the family quickly deteriorated."

Foster Homes

"We took into our care a boy of 15 and three girls aged 13, 11 and six. There was some family interest, and within three or four weeks it was possible to arrange for the boy to go to an aunt. Therefore it was necessary for us to obtain guardianship, although we did not have to remove him entirely from family influences."

The three girls were placed in three separate foster homes, since there was no one which could take them all.

During the 18 months that the mother was in jail, the children were in foster homes, and although they were somewhat disturbed because of their uncertainty and unhappiness about their mother, they did form attachments with the foster parents, and did well in school.

"When the mother was released she inquired about having the children back with her, but this privilege was not granted for a further two years."

Made Good

"By this time the older girls were themselves old enough to make their own decisions in the matter, and were reasonably assured that the mother herself had improved in her attitude and manner of living."

"The oldest girl left school after Grade 10 and took up hairdressing, where she did very well indeed. She turned out to be a most attractive and mature young person."

"The second girl did so well at school that, although there was no possibility of her attending university, she took a business course in which she excelled. As a young business woman, she is now a happy and sprightly young person."

The Family and Children's Service is asking for $72,114 from the Chest for 1958. This is an increase of $11,914 over the 1957 request.

Inco Research helps Canada grow

This scale model of an orebody at Inco's Creighton Mine is made of layers of coloured sand and gravel. The dark layer near the bottom represents the higher grade ore; above are layers of lower grade ore and waste rock containing little or no ore. By shifting the flow of these sands, Inco was able to study and adapt an unusual method of low cost mining to this ore, making its recovery economical.

Through Inco Research lower grade ores are mined economically

At Creighton Mine near Sudbury a large body of lower grade ore was known to exist. It promised to be an important source of nickel and copper—if it could be mined economically. But how to get this ore out at a cost low enough to be commercially practical?

Intensive study went into the problem. Underground tests were made. Observing that the earth above the mined-out orebodies had begun to settle, Inco mining engineers suggested the possibility of mining the lower grade ore by induced settling. Ore would be cut away from the underside of the orebody. As the support for the ore and rock above was removed, the mass would begin to settle causing the ore to break up so that it could be drawn off and recovered. The idea sounded good.

Scale models were built to determine how the ore could be drawn off from below without getting the waste rock above the ore. Then the method was tried in the mine. The results were so promising that regular mining operations were begun. Today, Creighton Mine is producing 12,000 tons of this lower grade ore daily. And Inco Research did it!

IN PARLIAMENT

Explosives, Douks Hold House Interest

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — Closer enforcement of regulations covering use of explosives was called for in the House Wednesday by H. W. Herridge, deputy CCF House leader. Mr. Herridge's Kootenay-West constituency is in the heart of the Sons of Freedom Doukhobors' field of operations.

Mr. Herridge said he had heard complaints in his area, and knew from his own experience and observations, that sometimes lumber workers or road construction crews left blasting powder and dynamite lying around, covered only with canvas or under a log, during weekends.

There was little difficulty in buying such explosives at stores and he felt there was a need for "much stricter enforcement" of regulations intended to ensure safe use of these materials.

This was particularly important, he said, in view of the "particular circumstances" in his area.

Mr. Herridge also said an attempt should be made to establish daylight saving time in summer on a national basis. This would avoid the "unnecessary inconvenience" of having some areas on standard-time while others were on daylight.

Mines Charged With Low-Grading

Some gold mines are purposely low-grading their ore to qualify for emergency gold-mining assistance subsidies, Douglas Fisher (CCF-Port Arthur) said Wednesday.

He said such charges have come to him and he mentioned one company—Little Long Lac Mines—as one of the firms involved.

Speaking during study of mines department estimates he asked Mines Minister Comtois what assurances there are that government inspectors keep a close check on low-grading practices to ensure that only those mines that deserve federal assistance get it.

Mr. Fisher said he has heard stories from miners in the Timmins, Ont., and Port Arthur areas that certain mines close off high-content ore bodies, thus producing only low-grade ore which qualifies them for emergency gold-mining assistance.

He said Little Long Lac Mines, through share purchases, acquires control of low-grade mines giving the company a large share of the federal subsidies.

Armand Dumas (L. Villeneuve) said the situation is not quite as represented by Mr. Fisher.

He said such complaints of alleged low-grading usually come from shareholders in mines which in the past have paid large dividends. When dividends dropped as the high grade became used up, shareholders lodged complaints of low-grading.

Mr. Comtois said his department has received no "proof" that mines low-grade ore to qualify for subsidies but that if such complaints came to his desk he would have them investigated.

Government inspectors not only examined company books but went underground as well to examine the ore bodies.

Earlier, Mines Minister Comtois concluded a review of his department's activities with the forecast that "our mineral industry will long continue to contribute a major share to our national prosperity."

Department estimates for the fiscal year ending next March 31 are $49,742,151, an increase of $1,762,761 over the previous year.

Arabs to Die For Bombings In Jordan

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — A Jordanian military court today convicted five young Arabs of exploding bombs in Amman and sentenced two of them to death.

One of the defendants was a 19-year-old girl, Nadia Salti. She got a 7½-year sentence but this was reduced to three years at hard labor.

Her fiancé, 22-year-old Stepho Theodore Stephan, was one of those sentenced to death.

The defendants were accused of exploding five bombs during recent weeks. One of the bombs was planted in the local British library and another in the Jordanian development board building.

Radio Cairo called Miss Salti a Moslem Joan of Arc.

Trail To Get Courthouse Says Chant

TRAIL, B.C. (CP) — Two B.C. cabinet ministers said Wednesday that Trail will soon have its first provincial courthouse and office buildings and a second Columbia River crossing.

The promise of the courthouse was made by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant who accompanied Premier Bennett and his government at a cabinet meeting here.

Mr. Chant, Mayor L. A. Read and city aldermen were to make an inspection of various sites today.

Highways Minister Gagliardi said there were many problems in connection with a second bridge here.

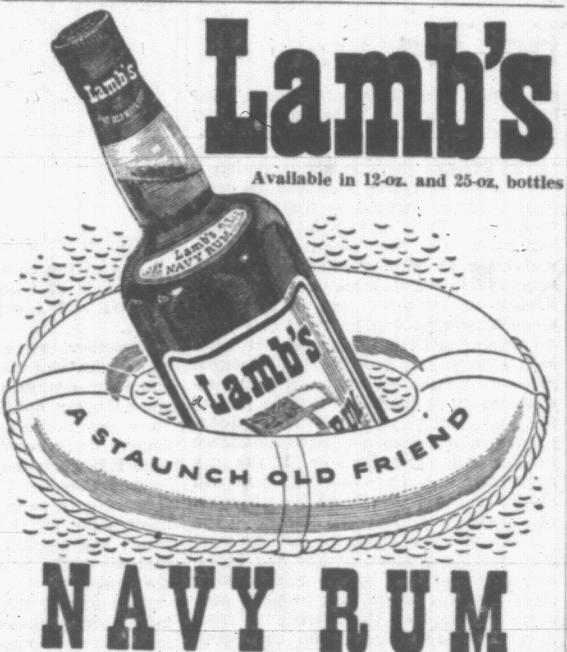

"We have not got any clearance from the federal government yet," he said, "and we don't know exactly where we are with the bridge as yet."

"We want to build a low level bridge without a swing span and they may stop us. But I said before that we will build a bridge and it will be built."

Nine Rescued

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — The pilot and eight passengers of an Alaska Coastal Airlines plane were rescued Wednesday after the two-engine craft overturned in Lynn Canal, 70 miles north of here.

The plane, on an 85-mile flight from Juneau to Haines, apparently flipped over while either landing or taking off from the canal.

6-DAY SHOPPERS ASK HEARING

Battle lines in the continuing war over shopping hours in Victoria have been drawn up again.

Six-Day Shopping Week Committee Wednesday asked council to allow it to appear at a hearing expected next month to review the present system of allowing six-day shopping for only four months.

The request followed a recent petition from the 5½-Day Shopping Week Committee for retention of the status quo and permission to appear at the hearing.

NEGOTIATIONS FAVORED

Dock Strike Parley Set

A meeting in Vancouver was scheduled for 2 p.m. today between representatives of B.C.'s 1,300 longshoremen and the B.C. Shipping Federation.

It was called following Wednesday's strike vote results, which showed 83 per cent of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union favored a walkout to back up a demand for a 6½-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The meeting was arranged when the longshoremen indicated they favored further negotiations to avert a strike. "provided the federation shows willingness to depart from its adamant attitude."

Both the longshoremen and the federation have turned down a conciliation board recommendation of a 10-cent-an-hour boost. Present average wage is $2.57.

Federation manager George McKee told The Times today he was "not surprised" at the strike vote result, but declined further comment.

He refused to disclose if the federation plans to make a new offer to the longshoremen at this afternoon's meeting.

SEEKONK, Mass. (AP) — Bill Ezinicki, Winnipeg, won the Rhode Island open golf championship by one stroke over Phil Friel, Nashua, N.H., with an eight-over-par 215 Tuesday.

Free of Debt?

PREMIER BENNETT SAYS HIS critics do not understand his debt policies. If so, it is equally true that Mr. Bennett does not understand his critics.

By determination and patience Mr. Bennett is certainly paying off the direct provincial debt at a remarkable rate. The debt stands at only about $55 millions today and will disappear within about eighteen months.

Mr. Bennett's purpose, a sound one, is to make the credit of his Government so good that investors will gladly lend huge sums of new money for various enterprises—the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, the Power Commission, the Toll Bridges and Highway Authority and the local school boards.

The debts thus contracted by the Government's agencies are not really debts at all, says Mr. Bennett, even though the Government has guaranteed to pay them and their interest charges, if necessary.

Hence so-called "contingent liabilities" of $381 millions—a rise of $135 millions in the last year—are not reckoned in the provincial debt. When the direct debt is paid off, the indirect debt may well be approaching half a billion but, says Mr. Bennett, we need not worry about it for it will carry itself.

That is to say, the PGE will pay all its interest charges and repay its capital borrowings out of its operating profits. The Power Commission will do the same out of electrical rates. The toll bridges will finance themselves through their tolls. The local school boards will pay their own way out of local taxes and, though the Government pays half their debts, even these substantial amounts are not provincial debt in Mr. Bennett's reckoning; they are merely "a current cost to the Government," an operating expense.

How school debts directly carried by the Government can be considered as anything but direct provincial debt it is impossible to understand but they are a small part of the huge debt described as indirect or contingent. As Mr. Bennett says, most of it will carry itself out of the earnings of the Government's agencies. But it is debt just the same, however it may be described in the Government's ledgers.

No one but the people of British Columbia (and to some small extent visiting tourists) will pay the interest on this debt and finally repay the capital. These costs will be paid in PGE freight and passenger rates, in electrical rates and bridge tolls.

That is not to say, of course, that the Government was wrong in extending the PGE, expanding electrical services and building toll bridges. All these are desirable works but they involve heavy debt charges paid by the public and absolutely guaranteed by the Government.

It may turn out, as Mr. Bennett hopes, that these works will actually expand the wealth and income of British Columbia to an amount greater than the annual cost and capital repayment of their debt.

In that case they will not increase the debt burden of the public at all. They will truly carry themselves, provided they produce enough new income (though this cannot be true of the school debts which are designed to produce another kind of wealth, the incalculable wealth of education).

Everyone will hope that Mr. Bennett is right in expecting his railway, power works and bridges to increase our total income and thus create no new burden on the public. He would be on much firmer ground, however, if he candidly admitted the fact of a large and growing debt, contracted for useful purposes, instead of telling us that we shall be "debt-free" in 1960. We shall not be.

With Wide Powers

THE FEDERAL MEASURE TO establish a regulatory board for radio and television broadcasting in Canada is essentially sound. It was a long-standing anomaly that the CBC board of governors should have control of private stations in competition with the CBC system. The new arrangement, when approved by Parliament, will rectify this situation. The legislation follows closely the recommendations of the recent Fowler royal commission on broadcasting.

It should be recognized, however, that the new body, to consist of three permanent and twelve part-time members, will be invested with great powers and responsibilities. Both CBC and private stations will come under its supervision. Under the terms of appointment, the governors must ensure "a varied and comprehensive broadcasting service of a high standard that is basically Canadian in content and character."

Those are wide terms of reference and they will be backed by wide authority. They mean that in effect the new governing board will be one of the most important bodies in the country, since it will be in a position to exert a vital influence on the nation's ideas, information and viewpoints.

One of the most important features falling within the jurisdiction of the board will be the matter of radio and television networks. At present only the CBC may operate hookups of stations on a regional or national basis. The new board will have the task of formulating regulations for similar networks of private stations—long a very controversial point—and deciding on applications to establish such facilities.

One consideration in particular must guide the board, however. The principle of public broadcasting in Canada must not be imperilled. That principle, as exemplified in the CBC, has been proven a necessary and successful part of our national life, well worthy of a place along with private enterprise. The competition between the two will now perhaps be on a more equal footing, but the net result to the Canadian public should be better programs all round.

That Printing Bureau

THERE SEEMS TO BE NO doubt that the former Liberal Government made a sorry botch of the huge printing bureau in Hull. The public accounts committee of Parliament (with a Liberal as chairman) is wise to get to the bottom of this whole business and hide nothing. The Liberal Party certainly should not attempt to conceal what was obviously an administrative blunder and improvident use of public money.

But this affair should be kept in proportion. Through more than two decades of office the Liberal Government was touched by scandal less, probably, than any government in our history, though in the process of war and its aftermath more public money was being spent in Ottawa than ever before.

It was well known, however, that some ten years ago the public works department had fallen into loose, inefficient ways.

In 1953 Mr. St. Laurent attempted to clear up this situation by appointing to the public works portfolio one of the most respected members of his cabinet. Mr. Robert Winters brought to the department unquestioned integrity and an administrative capacity which, in private life, has since made him one of the nation's leading industrialists.

It did not take Mr. Winters long to jack up the public works department. As the evidence before the public accounts committee shows, he and his able deputy minister, General Young, immediately attended to the printing bureau, as to other governmental projects, but it was evidently then too late to overcome the waste and mismanagement already committed.

The Conservative Government quite rightly wishes to know all the facts. The Liberal Opposition would be quite wrong to deny its laxity in this case. And it is to be hoped that, after some years of office, the present ministry will have a record of efficiency and honesty as good as that of its predecessor.

'Most Desperate Situation'

REIMPOSED CLOSURE OF THE forests emphasizes the serious nature of the threat to the natural resource that is the basis of most of our prosperity in this province. The evidence that a number of local outbreaks have been caused by the carelessness or mischievousness of residents, calls for closer supervision and heavy penalties where required.

Day-to-day accounts of flaming forests on this Island and elsewhere give a tragic picture of the destruction that is taking place. But when the full facts are presented later, in terms of millions of dollars in lost wealth and payrolls, the sorry story will be complete.

The plight of the forests today has been described as "possibly the most desperate timber fire situation in the province's history." We must ensure—by voluntary care among responsible persons and by the full weight of the law in the case of wrongdoers—that no human assistance is given to today's public enemy No. 1.

Making the Most of It

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Blest Be The Tie...

THE latest proof of Britain's solid and expanding democracy comes from the Great Eastern Region of the British Railways. There the workers, who never attended a Public School, are nevertheless to have their Old School Tie. It will be blue, with white replicas of the badge of the former Eastern Counties Railway.

Thus, with suitable nostalgia, the bad old days before the railways were nationalized will be remembered and the good new days of socialism proclaimed. The tie, a badge of caste, will no longer be confined to the aristocracy. As the egalitarian movement spreads, every man will be an aristocrat. It cost Shakespeare a lot of money in his old age to buy a coat-of-arms. Anyone can afford a tie.

Hutchison

UP to now these arrangements have been somewhat restricted in Canada (we always lag behind Britain in social reform) and our official ties have been confined to a few universities and regiments. It is encouraging to learn, therefore, from The Winnipeg Free Press, that the movement is spreading.

Mr. Vincent Massey, perhaps the ablest of our Governors-General (who, I think, should hold his office as long as he is willing) has designed a tie to be worn only by himself and his entourage—blue silk emblazoned with gilt maple leaves. This excellent design has been formally approved by Her Majesty the Queen.

THERE is no law, I suppose, to prevent anyone wearing such a tie if his wife can run it up on her sewing machine, but no honest citizen outside the vice-regal entourage would think of doing so.

Free enterprise and private invention are not limited, however. There is no law to prevent the humbler sort of Canadians inventing, registering and wearing their own exclusive ties.

As The Free Press suggests, after long research, the prairie farmers could agree to wear a bright yellow cravat with a crest showing a grasshopper couchant on a head of wheat—a large and flowing tie, one imagines, to represent the grain surplus.

AGAIN, the western oilmen could design a gold-plated tie with a spout-like well. The natural gas industry would offer some difficulty, gas being invisible, but I dare say some inventive genius could find an appropriate symbol.

Next, there are the political parties that urgently need some outward mark to distinguish them, their outer policies being often indistinguishable.

The Free Press has thought hard on that problem, too, and proposes for the Conservative Party a pale blue tie speckled with shiny visions; for the Liberals a bright red tie dotted with little pipelines; for the C.C.F., a rather pallid pink; and for Social Credit solid black, in mourning, I presume, for Mr. Bennett's earlier hopes.

THE difficult thing is not to design a tie for everyone, whatever his occupation, but to make sure that everyone wears it. Then life will be greatly simplified. On first meeting him, you will know at once whether a man is a Conservative, a Liberal, a plumber, a banker or what-not and many social embarrassments will be avoided.

Meeting a Conservative, you will not ask awkward questions about interest rates or British woolens. If your unexpected guest turns out to be a Liberal at first sight, you will not discuss parliamentary closure, want-of-confidence motions and tax reductions. If the new acquaintance is an undertaker you will hardly congratulate him on the affluence of his profession.

On the other hand, the thrifty man, encountering a stock broker and recognizing him at once by the golden dollar signs upon his bosom, may properly seek some free tips on the market, or from a doctor may secure some convenient information about cardiac conditions or hay fever.

THESE marks of distinction are more urgently required all the time as society becomes increasingly uniform and educated, until you can hardly tell a learned university professor from the humblest craftsman, except that the latter will usually have a larger automobile.

In this age of affluence nearly everybody can have an automobile. What we lack is not goods but status. In the epoch of equality, the Century of the Common Man, every man rightly wishes to assert his uncommonness and superiority. He needs a special tie.

HIS automobile, house, wife and children may look exactly like his neighbor's. His neck will always be his own. His head may be full of his neighborhood's ideas. His short front will proclaim the free soul within.

The democratic process will be complete when every man, reaching for his tie in the morning, knows by its design that he is better than his fellows.

As for me, I am designing a one-man tie to express my lifelong affections and aversions. It will show a double-bitted axe, prostrate; a speedboat, regnant; and a spiral of inflation, rampant, on a dark field of bankruptcy, universal.

The New Bond Issues

Re this Dominion bond conversion. Will you be good enough to have your financial editor tell us readers why this transaction was entered into. As I understand it, the move is going to cost the Canadian taxpayers something like ninety million dollars every year because of the increased interest rate on the new bonds. What we want to know is just what return or advantage do we taxpayers get for this gigantic outlay.

From this old armchair it looks like an outright gift to bondholders, given without even their request. Yesterday's paper reports some American insurance company converting nine million of Canadian bonds, which means that we Canadian taxpayers will be making them a donation because of the higher rate of interest on the new bonds which we now give them of one hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars every year so long as the bonds exist.

What makes me wonder is that I have not heard a single complaint. There must be some reason that we rustics do not know. Surely the new federal government have not sold out to our creditors already.

UNCLE PAUL.

(Editor's note: In announcing the bond conversion plan to Parliament last July 14, Finance Minister Fleming said: "We require $1,400 million of new money during this fiscal year, in addition to providing for the refunding of nearly $2,000 million of maturing bonds." During the next few years there will mature in quick succession the whole of the remaining wartime victory loans. The total amount of the five victory loans falling due between now and 1966 is over $6,400 million.

This large volume of early maturities overhauling the market made it very difficult to plan an orderly program of debt management and has contributed greatly to the general feeling of uncertainty which has prevailed in our bond markets for the past years. This uncertainty in the market for prime Canadian bonds has had inevitable effects on the market for provincial, municipal and good corporate bonds. We have therefore decided to clear away this heavy congestion of early maturities and lay the foundations of an orderly and sensible program of public debt management. Today we are launching the Canada conversion loan of 1958."

Tuneful Music

One of the first things I read in the "Times" is Phil Lee's column. That boy is good and I enjoy his writing very much.

However, sometimes I couldn't disagree with him more heartily, especially when he criticizes the Chevy summer show. In my opinion, it is the best TV show on the air at present and the singers don't act as if they had a nervous itch when they sing.

And they don't try to make a "project" of each song, which seems to be a habit with Dinah Shore, for example. When she sings I find myself wishing that she would hurry up and get on with the show.

But then I think Mr. Lee is rather indifferent to music while I love tuneful music. Very few people really love music.

The Hose Is Switched

WHILE the debate about the Middle East goes windily onwards in the United Nations, no one is paying much attention to the many signs of a menacing shift in Communist world policy. A similar shift occurred after the acute Formosa crisis in the spring of 1955.

At that time, the Kremlin switched its pressure-hose to the new task of washing out the Western positions in the Middle East. Thereafter, the Far East, which had been so stormy, became temporarily quiescent. But now all the Western positions in the Middle East have been pretty successfully washed out. And another switch of the pressure-hose, back to the Far East, now seems to be taking place.

The key preparatory episode was the Peking meeting of Mao Tse-tung and Nikita Khrushchev. Concerning this meeting, much still remains mysterious. But the appearances suggest that the Chinese used their great influence inside the Soviet Communist party as a lever, in order to force Khrushchev into doing several things he cannot possibly have wished to do.

For example, retention of the Soviet monopoly of the absolute weapons is clearly the most vital Russian interest in Russia's relationship with China. Nothing else insures Russian supremacy within the Communist bloc.

New Weapons

Yet reports from Warsaw now suggest that Khrushchev has agreed to hand over to China nuclear weapons and the rockets to deliver them with. If this is true, it is an extraordinary development.

These Warsaw reports can also be read, however, simply as a psychological preparation for quite another development, which there are more solid reasons to expect.

As soon as the news of the Mao-Khrushchev meeting was received, it was suggested in this space that the meeting probably presaged a renewed Chinese Communist threat to Formosa's off-shore islands and perhaps to Formosa itself. It can now be stated, on highest authority, that the American policy-makers believe such a threat is on the way.

The hard evidence for this belief is the military redeployment, especially of air units, that the Chinese Communists have carried out in the last month.

Something like two-thirds of their entire 2,700-plane air force has now been concentrated on airfields in the three provinces—Chekian, Kwantung and Fukien—which I especially like the writings of all the columnists, and I noticed the pictures of people were so clear that they looked just like photos. The boy who leaves the paper is so polite and nice, it is a pleasure to see him.

Adults or Not?

Magistrate Thomas is to be congratulated on his apparent campaign to demonstrate forcibly the stupid anomaly in our liquor law created when the voting age was dropped to 19.

Twice within a week he has imposed $50 fines on youths for having liquor in their possession. The latest case involves two 20-year-old young men.

I wonder what these men will be thinking when they are next solicited for votes by our Utah Heap politicians who did not have the courage to lower the liquor age when they dropped the voting age. They will be twenty-one by that time, of course, but they will know through bitter experience that they were not made full citizens by the vote.

They will know, of course, that Canada is delighted to have them fly jet aircraft at 800 miles an hour, to drop atomic bombs and kill thousands of people, or even to get married and have a family. But in B.C. they cannot be trusted to have a bottle of beer in their hand.

Whether Magistrate Thomas' method is the best way to deal with it is an open question, but it surely brings the matter sharply to public attention.

The problem of the misuse of liquor by minors is certainly a thorny one in speeded up modern society. But it cannot be solved by making second class citizens of our 19 and 20-year-olds and creating a resentment within them that may last a lifetime.

What does the average, working married man benefit from all these strikes? Frankly I think they lose more than they gain.

Why don't all these big companies that are always talking of going on strike, get together and set a wage control. In other words, when the cost of living goes up the wages should also increase. And when the cost of living drops, the wages should decrease. Why can't everything be put on an even keel?

I think there would probably be less strikes and less unemployment. There would also be less heartaches. People of Victoria, what is your opinion of this?

"WONDERING"

Alsop

are within striking distance of Formosa.

A whole complex of new airfields very close to Quemoy and the Matsu Islands has suddenly been occupied by Chinese Communist jet squadrons.

The Chinese Nationalist air units on Formosa are thus out-numbered by at least three to one. Worse still, the best aircraft the U.S. has given to Chiang Kai-shek's air force are the wholly obsolete F-84 and F-86 fighters. The main Communist strength consists of the vastly superior Mig-17 fighters. And even the Chinese Communist jet bombers, the IL-28s, should do well in any combat with the ancient fighters the Nationalists must use.

In these circumstances, it is clear that the Chinese Communists can beat down any opposition Formosa may offer, and can establish an air blockade of Quemoy and the Matsus.

Hard Choice

If these little islands close to the China coast can no longer be supplied from Formosa, they cannot be held by Formosa. If the Chinese Communists move to establish such an air-blockade, the American policy-makers will therefore have to choose between surrendering these islands, as the Tachen Islands were surrendered in 1955, or using American military power to break the air-blockade.

Worse still, as Adm. Stump greatly angered the president by pointing out, American military power in the Pacific is now immeasurably weaker, in terms of men and ships and planes, than it was when the Korean War broke out.

If the offshore islands are to be saved from the blockade that is now feared, nuclear weapons will almost certainly have to be used to save them—which is the very opposite of an agreeable prospect. The policy-makers are therefore deeply split by this question they see rushing down upon them.

One faction says we simply cannot drop A-bombs and H-bombs for the sake of Quemoy and the Matsus. The other faction points out, quite rightly, that surrender of the off-shore islands will be a heavy blow to American prestige in Asia, which will set off a chain reaction of other, very grave political consequences, beginning on Formosa itself.

No one says what is also true, that the whole question was hand-made by the Eisenhower administration. For Chiang Kai-shek never used to have regular troops on the off-shore islands. He was quite brutally pressured into putting his troops there by the American government. The purpose was to give some color of reality to the famous "unleashing" that was the first gesture of our "dynamic new foreign policy."

Apartment 6

ALTHOUGH the supper was only for herself, Mrs. Carling of Apartment 6 laid the pretty polished table just as carefully as when her husband was alive.

She put on the little copper vase with the two flame-colored roses that the woman in the apartment below had given her that morning. ("From my daughter's garden," the woman had said. And it had been a little kindness between them because the woman remembered that Mrs. Carling had said that, living in an apartment, she did miss a garden.)

Now she stooped to catch the scent of the roses again, and to feel the texture of their petals with her finger. Roses were lovely things, she thought, taking a clean table mat from the drawer above the silver. The silver should be cleaned again, she thought. And that reminded her of the nurse who'd come to tea the week before.

She hadn't come as a nurse but as the friend of a friend who lived in another city, and somehow they'd talked of the problems of widows who lived alone.

The nurse said that among her cases she met many of these problems, and Mrs. Carling who was normally very reserved found herself talking as she never talked to her married children for fear of worrying them.

Ruth

"Lying in bed too long in the morning," she said, "because it hardly seems worth getting up at the time I used to when there's no one but myself to get breakfast for, and I only have myself to consider."

"What do you do?" asked the nurse.

"Make myself get up by a certain time," said Mrs. Carling firmly. "It's one of my little disciplines."

It was hard to make yourself eat enough, Mrs. Carling admitted. But she did eat properly now, she said, because her doctor had been very firm with her about skipping too many meals. She'd promised him that she'd always have one really good meal a day, and she'd kept her promise.

She always laid the table properly, too, she said. It was another of her "little disciplines" since she'd found that she was growing careless and tending to eat off a corner of the kitchen table, and never using any of her pretty things.

"Just a bit of newspaper on the table," she said, "and shoving my plate aside so I could finish the bit I happened to be reading."

Well, maybe I have Mrs. Carling wrong because I've taken her mainly from my imagination. But I'm sure that living alone in apartments there are widows who've had to fight these little battles in their adjustment to the solitary life.

Perhaps such details seem ridiculous to men. But these are some of the little "frills" by which many women keep their self respect alive.

Tranquilizers

Essential Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Of late, physicians have been coming to see that tranquilizers, when given to office patients, do not always produce the miracles they often produce for patients in mental hospitals. Sometimes the office patient reacts wrongly to a tranquilizer and even gets excited by it.

This point was brought out by Dr. L. B. Kalinowsky at the recent meeting of the American Psychiatric Association. As he said, many an anxiety-ridden or neurotic person, when given one of the tranquilizers, gets more anxious than he was before. This note will interest those many persons who are now wondering why they cannot take tranquilizers. Years ago I wrote an article on the curious fact that many nervous persons cannot take a barbiturate or morphine or codeine. Instead of quieting them the drug throws them into an excited and very uncomfortable state.

One joy about writing this column is that, sometimes, when I tell of a great need for something in our civilization, good people write to say that something is being done to fill the need. For instance, of late I have been distressed over the fact that in our schools, the most brilliant and gifted children, on whom the future of our country so largely depends, must often be neglected while the teacher spends her time helping the children who find it hard to learn.

Then, in came kindly Mr. Joe Berg and his co-ordinator, Mr. Jacob Shapiro, to tell me of the Joe Berg Foundation and how this is underwriting all the expenses of setting up—all over the U.S.—special courses for gifted youngsters. The new plan is practical and it is working. Mr. Berg is the type of able and dedicated business man who wouldn't be

Shopping Centre Deal Wins Favor

$65,000 Offer Gets Approval By Saanich Finance Committee

Sale of the Douglas Street municipal yard site to Dominion Construction Co. for $65,000 for development into a large scale shopping centre, was approved in principle by Saanich finance committee Wednesday.

The committee voted five-to-two in favor of selling the five-acre property.

The sale was approved after the company promised to develop a $2,500,000 integrated shopping centre—largest in the municipality—in the area.

The development would include a department store, a large supermarket, a bank, a modern restaurant, hardware, drug and clothing stores and other specialty shops.

A parking area for 1,000 cars would also be provided. Plans and design for the shopping centre would also be subject to the approval of council and the Saanich town planner.

Sale Goes Ahead If Council Approves

The firm had options on six acres of land immediately to the south of the municipal yard, he said. The combined properties were sufficient to develop the shopping centre.

Committeeman Stanley Murphy said the committee's recommendation would first have to be approved by council before an agreement for sale was drawn up.

Councillors Ainslie Worthington and Leslie Pasmore voted against approving the sale.

Coun. Worthington favored selling the land at $125,000 with "no strings attached," so the company could do anything it wanted with the property.

"It does not mean that I will vote against the project when it comes before council," he said. "But the agreement at this stage looks like a gamble for both parties."

Coun. Murphy said the company's proposal would be submitted to the municipal solicitor for study and recommendation before it was submitted to the council.

"I see nothing wrong with the sale of the property as long as the company agrees to develop and design the shopping centre in accordance with our plans," said Reeve George Chatterton. "These are details which will have to be worked out."

The finance committee recommendation will be submitted to council on Sept. 2.

Earlier the committee was informed that W. H. Malkin Co. of Victoria, which had offered $90,000 for the site and planned

Robert G. Bentall, Dominion vice-president, said his company was prepared to sign an agreement that if it did not develop the centre as planned in two years, the property would be returned to the municipality.

Saanich would pay back the $65,000 in return for the property.

"But we are fully confident that we will have the shopping centre fully developed in two years' time," said Mr. Bentall. "We don't foresee any difficulty in developing the site."

The development would give Saanich its first large shopping area, he said.

a $750,000 shopping centre, was no longer interested in the property.

Comptroller John Tribe reported to the committee that Saanich sooner or later would have to sell its municipal yard.

The yard, he said, was badly in need of repairs, such as a complete new wiring system.

He recommended the purchase of a new municipal yard site, whether the present yard was sold or not.

School Principal Hurt In Car Crash

S. J. Willis Junior High School principal Bernard Gillie is in fair condition with a severe leg injury received in an auto crash while on a honeymoon trip in Colorado.

He was to be moved from hospital at Steamboat Springs, Colo., for an operation on his crushed leg at Denver when his condition improves.

Mrs. Gillie, the former Mavis Chisholm, received mouth and knee cuts in the accident.

MUNGO MARTIN

BUT HE'S TOO SLEEPY

Reluctant Chief Chased by Artists

British Columbia's most celebrated Indian chief, totem pole carver Mungo Martin, is becoming one of the most sought after models of B.C. and foreign artists.

Mrs. J. E. Godman, vice-president of the B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society, a friend of the chief, says Mungo is being deluged with requests to sit for painters.

But the 78-year-old chief, who hates sitting for "long hours while an artist dabbles in paint, won't have anything to do with the majority of them, she says. It's against his grain.

The last person to paint a portrait of Mungo was Miss Alice Carey, 430 Gorge Road. She also made a portrait of Mrs. Helen Hunt, granddaughter of the chief.

"He is a delightful person to paint," said the London-trained artist. "The only trouble is he has a habit of falling asleep."

The chief, she said, was invited twice to her studio to sit, and on both occasions he slumbered.

GRACE GROWS UP FROM 21 OUNCES

Tiniest Baby 57 Pounds Now

Grace Soderman, the smallest baby in B.C. ever to survive, celebrates her 11th birthday today.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Soderman, 2606 Belmont, Grace weighed only 21 ounces when she was born in the King's Daughters' Hospital, Duncan, on Aug. 21, 1947.

When she came home at the age of five months, Grace weighed only seven pounds. She weighs 57 pounds now.

Grace says she would like to say "hello" to the two nurses who assisted at her birth but she doesn't know who they are.

If anyone can remember the name of the supervisor of the maternity ward in 1947, Grace would like them to phone her at 5-5109.

New Words Battle At Bureau Probe

Chevrier, Pickersgill Exchange Personalities Feud With Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — Former Liberal works minister Robert Winters, now Canadian president of the Rio Tinto Company, may be called as a witness before Parliament's printing bureau investigating body.

JOHN WILLIAM GREEN
... doubly talented.

Funeral Held For Musical City Carpenter

Funeral was held Wednesday for well-known Victoria carpenter and musician John William Green. Mr. Green, who lived at 2439 Heron, died at St. Joseph's Hospital Sunday after an illness. He was 81.

Born in Sheffield, England, Mr. Green early in life showed considerable talent in carpentry. He taught the art at the former Dominion-provincial youth training school and held many classes in woodworking at Victoria night schools.

Another of his talents was ability in music. He could play equally well the piano, trombone, violin and saxophone, and he was well-known for conducting the Messiah in local churches and over radio stations.

He was choir master of Centennial Church on Gorge Road for a time in 1919.

Surviving are the widow, Eleanor Gertrude; four sons, George and Victor in Victoria, John in Pacific, Wash., and Cyril in Castro Valley, Calif.; three daughters, Martha in Victoria, Florence in San Pablo, Calif., and Winnifred at Walnut Creek, Calif.; 16 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Cremation arrangements by McCall Bros. will be announced.

SHE'S JUST YEAR YOUNGER THAN PROVINCE

One year younger than British Columbia, Mrs. Ida Morrison, 1471 Fairfield, will celebrate her 99th birthday Wednesday at the Faircliff Rest Home.

A long time member of the Women's Missionary Society, she came to Victoria in 1928.

Born on an Ontario farm in 1839 she and her husband, who died in 1914, farmed in Manitoba for 40 years. Mrs. Morrison attributes her life to "divine providence, doing one's duty, and a sense of humor."

NEW REGULATIONS

Single Inspection for Boilers

Changes in the provincial boiler regulations provide for a permit and an inspection at the time of the original installation, a spokesman for the Public Works department said today.

If the installation of equipment is satisfactory, no further inspections are needed. Previously the regulations called for annual inspections of hot water heating systems used in buildings.

"The changes in the regulations are in keeping with the policy of improving regulations wherever possible," the spokesman said.

"The old annual inspection has been found to be an impractical nuisance to owners and contractors and difficult to administer."

Ol' Diz Says He'll Be Here for Opening

It looks like Ol' Diz will be visiting Victoria next spring. Colorful, Dizzy Dean, the one-time migratory cotton picker who became one of the National League's all-time pitching heroes during the 1930s and is now one of the continent's most famous television personalities, intends to attend the opening of the city's newest baseball circuit—the Dizzy Dean League for boys.

Gerry Girard, who has been organizing sports for young Victorians for many years, told the Times today that plans were almost completed for the new loop, which will be for boys who have not reached their 18th birthday on Jan. 1.

Dizzy accepted the post of honorary president of the proposed league during a telephone conversation this week with Girard, spokesman for a group of Victoria sportsmen who have drawn up plans for a six-team circuit that will provide "more baseball for boys."

"It's the first Dizzy Dean League in America," Dean told Girard. "I'm highly honored by the news that you people up in Canada are going to name a league after me."

"I'm 100 per cent behind you, pardner, and I wish you all the luck in the world. I'll sure be there for your opening game."

Dizzy said he hoped to announce formation of the new league in Victoria during his "Baseball Game of the Week" television program this Saturday. Dean and his TV partner, Buddy Blattner, will be doing their regular CBS telecast of the National League game at St. Louis, in which the Cardinals play the Philadelphia Phillies.

The program, which is estimated to attract approximately 30,000,000 viewers, may be seen by Victoria fans over Channels 7 and 12, starting at 11:25 a.m.

Girard said that sponsors for all six teams had been obtained and that application forms will be available this fall for youngsters wishing to play in the new circuit.

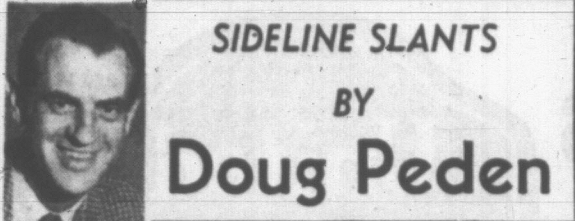

The Dizzy Dean League will give Victoria six minor league circuits. This year the ever-expanding program for the city's young bat-swingers covered five age groups—Little League, for boys of nine to 12 years; Pony League, 13 to 14; Babe Ruth League, 15 to 16; Colt League, under 17, and Connie Mack League, under 19.

"Several of us have been concerned over the number of boys leaving baseball after graduating from the Babe Ruth and Pony Leagues," said Girard.

"We think this league will do away with the present bottleneck in Victoria's baseball set-up. It will mean that more boys will be able to play baseball during the years of their greatest athletic development."

"We'll be operating with six teams, probably with only 14 players on each club in order that none of the boys will have to spend too much time on the bench. Having the support of Dizzy Dean will give us a tremendous send-off."

SIDELINE SLANTS BY Doug Peden

They call rollicking Jerome Herman Dean "Dizzy," but he always knows the score and then some. He's about as goofy as a certified cheque.

After the big gangling country boy became the miracle man of the St. Louis Cardinals "Gas House Gang" of the mid-30s, baseball writers used a host of adjectives to describe the National League's best pitcher of that time, but modest was never one of them. His personality resembled a tartan suit—unique, colorful and demanding attention.

Dizzy was often accused of being a braggart, but more often than not it turned out he was correctly calling the shots. He could back up his boasts with ability. He won ball games. He was the last of the 30-game-winning pitchers.

Dean is just an exuberant guy who enjoys life, loves baseball and isn't afraid to say what he thinks.

His salary reached $25,000 a year when that was big money for a baseball player. When his playing days ended Ol' Diz started throwing grammatical curves by way of radio and television. His treatment of the Queen's English shocked thousands but endeared him to millions. He now draws down more than twice his top baseball pay and is known by more people than ever through his CBS weekly television stint with Buddy Blattner.

Like his baseball career, Dizzy's early days on the air were turbulent. He made schoolmarmish see red by remarks like "the slug into second base but the catcher threw him out." The indignant educators never had a chance of getting Dean tossed off the air. Too many people liked his lingo and his spontaneous comments on baseball games.

Referring to complaints about his butchery of English, Ol' Diz once commented that "a lot of folks that ain't saying ain't, ain't eatin' regular." So he announced that he was "gonna keep on saying ain't and keep on eatin'. And if a guy sluds, he sluds, don't he? Nothin' wrong with that is there? I'm gonna talk like I talked in Arkansas."

Diz Made Climb to Majors In One Year

They immortalized Dean in a movie, "The Pride of St. Louis," filmed in 1951. For that Diz received $50,000 and it all adds up to a pretty good total for a one-time barefoot cotton picker who claims his school days ended in the second grade.

Early hardships didn't dim his bluster or deflate his exuberance. Baseball lore is full of yarns about Dizzy and his capers. As a kid he always wanted a bicycle and never owned one. Once when he was pitching in the minor leagues he found a bike parked under the stands, sneaked it out and rode it between each inning of a game he was pitching.

On one of the Cardinals' trips to Boston, Dean told the Braves' catcher he could tell everyone that Ol' Diz would throw nothing but fast balls that day. He did just that and shut out the Braves.

Arriving broke and in debt at the Cardinals' Florida training camp one spring, he decided something had to be done to get some money. So he made a deal with an aviator for a parachute jump the next Sunday, the event to be advertised and proceeds divided. Club officials caught him just in time.

In his teens, Jerome Herman took off and joined the U.S. army. "That's where I got my first pair of shoes," he claims.

He got his nickname while playing with an army baseball team and the Cardinals signed him to a contract soon after his discharge.

At the start of the 1930 season, Dean was sent to St. Joseph, Mo., in the Western League. After he had won 17 games while losing seven, he was moved up to Houston of the Texas League. He continued his good pitching and although the Cards were leading the pennant race, he was ordered to report to the National League club.

So in less than one season he went from the Western League to the majors.

Broken Toe Spelled End of Career

He spent the next season getting more experience at Houston, but in 1932 started his six exciting years as a Cardinal regular. His best season was 1934, when he won 30 games and lost only seven.

His brother Paul, nicknamed "Daffy" joined the club that year and won 19. Between them they won the World Series without any pitching help, each hurling two victories. Dizzy was named the league's most valuable player in 1934. In an amazing pennant drive by the Cardinals and in the World Series, he pitched nine games in 19 days.

Yet, manager Frankie Frisch told him, "You loaf, that's the trouble. Thirty games! Anybody with your stuff should have won 40."

His playing career was shortened by an injury in the 1937 All-Star game, when a smash off the bat of Earl Averill broke one of Dean's toes. He changed his pitching motion to avoid placing too much weight on the painful toe. Then his arm went bad from the unnatural motion and he never again regained peak effectiveness.

However, he was sold to Chicago Cubs the next spring for $185,000 and three players. It was a deal valued at $270,000, but it turned out that he was washed up—at 27.

After two mediocre seasons at Chicago he was optioned to a minor league in 1940. He won three and lost three in 1940 and pitched in only one game in 1941.

He couldn't stay away from baseball and soon was broadcasting games of the St. Louis Browns. And the guy who has been a success by just being himself is now one of the continent's best-known personalities.

Diz once tried his hand at football broadcasting, but quit the job in a hurry.

"The only play I can call right is the kickoff," he confessed. "The only people who go to football games are them that don't have radios. They spend most of their time at games looking for seats and stepping on other people's toes."

Champion Saved Face

CHICAGO (AP)—Welterweight boxing champion Virgil Akins saved face Wednesday night with a 10th-round technical knockout of Charlie (Tombstone) Smith.

He didn't have much face to save.

Smith, a gangling 4-to-1 underdog, opened cuts at the corner of Akins' eyes and by the 10th the champ's face was a crimson mask. Tombstone had a big lead on points as he hit the rusty Akins with long, popping lefts and digging rights.

The small turnout of 862 Chicago Stadium fans who contributed to a net gate of $1,101 sensed an upset as the final round started and chanted for Tombstone to hold out. But Akins charged like a gored bull and Tombstone was caught in a flurry of rights and lefts.

A left hook decked Tombstone for an eight count. Then Akins drove him into a corner. He landed 16 punches without the rusty Akins with long, popping lefts and digging rights. Referee Frank Sikora stopped it at 1:18.

Fred Gets Hot; Cools Off Pils

Goaltender Fred Fulla mystified Vancouver Pilseners at New Westminster Wednesday night and Nanaimo Timbermen evened the Inter-City Lacrosse League semifinal playoff series at one game each.

Fulla kicked out a total of 37 shots in a standstill display while the T-Men were hammering 12 of 28 shots behind Pils' Dave Unwin, scoring three times in each period to chalk up a 12-10 triumph.

A slim crowd of 1,024 watched the game at New Westminster's Queen's Park arena, which was used because the Vancouver Forum is occupied by a circus.

TWO FOR ROSKAMP

The two teams were tied 3-3 at the end of the first period, but Nanaimo moved ahead 6-5 at half time and held their slim lead at 9-8 after three periods. Three quick goals at the start of the final session gave the Timbermen a 12-8 lead which Vancouver was never able to overcome although the Pils peppered shots at Fulla in the closing minutes.

Don Sherry scored three goals for Nanaimo while Ross Roskamp added two goals and an assist. Arnie Dugan also had two goals for the Timbermen.

Bill Chisholm was top scorer for the Pils with three goals, while Bill Barbour, Pete Black and Fred Uselman each scored twice.

Trailers Move Up In Baseball Chase

THAT'S REAL OPTIMISM!

TRAIL (CP)—Spokane's amateur hockey club which Wednesday won a court battle for the right to playing dates in the Coliseum along with the professional Flyers, have signed a coach.

Signed to handle the new entry is Joe Benoit, former player and coach with Spokane Flyers when they were in the WHL. He also played with the Montreal Canadiens of the National League.

Owners of the new club, Clarence Tubbs and Dr. Francis Jurdy also announced that they have started signing players for the 1958-59 season.

Rollins Keeps Ladder Lead At Cowichan

Victor Rollins, Vancouver youngster spending the summer at Cowichan Bay, still holds down the top rung in the annual Cowichan Bay Salmon Club ladder derby.

Rollins, who has won three of the derby's first five weekly competitions, has a 37-pound spring salmon to his credit.

In second place in the scramble for the 50 available rungs that will qualify holders for a berth in the derby fish-off, is Steve Gillis of Cowichan Bay. Third is W. E. Mahan of Seattle.

Several anglers have been knocked off rungs during the past week and 25 entrants have weighed in fish of over 25 pounds.

The qualifying period ends Sunday night.

Pontiacs Pad Lead

LONG BEACH, Ont. (CP)—Long Beach Pontiacs moved into a 2-0 lead in their best-of-seven Ontario Lacrosse Association senior semifinal Wednesday night with a 6-5 victory over Welland Swiftons.

HARVEY, N.B.—Bob Spring, Saint John, N.B., knocked out Frankie J. Turpin, Bangor, Me., 9 (highweight).

Maple Leafs Sign Holdover Trio

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Maple Leafs, of the National Hockey League, today announced the signing of three more players for the 1958-59 season.

Barry Cullen, Billy Harris and Jim Morrison are the latest Leafs to sign. All are holdovers. Gary Aldora, George Armstrong, Brian Cullen, Gerry James, Bob Nevin, Bob Baun and Ed Chadwick signed earlier.

Par Competition

Mrs. J. H. Wilson was winner of the Victoria Golf Club's women's monthly par competition.

"B" division winner was Mrs. A. W. Hunt, and Mrs. T. G. Linton captured the "C" division.

ESTACION WINS

CHICAGO (AP)—Estacion, a 29-to-1 shot, won the $55,450 Matron Handicap Wednesday at Arlington Park by 4 1/2 lengths over the 3-to-5 favorite, Munch.

Glen Locked Door With Shutout Stint

Fletchers allowed Navy, their opponents in the Senior "B" Men's Softball League playoff final, a brief span of glory. Then the league champions closed the door on the Tars.

At one time in the best-of-five series, Navy was ahead 2-1, just one win away from victory.

But Fletchers, who had ended up a healthy first in the pennant chase, had given the Sailors enough time in the spotlight. The Clothiers tied the series the next day and won it Wednesday as they clobbered their opponents, 11-0.

Now they advance to the provincial double-knockout semifinal series at Ladysmith against an Up-Island club and two Mainland teams.

First game for Fletchers will be at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Glen Bullen was the big star of Wednesday's victory. Within three outs of pitching a no-hitter, Bullen yielded a single to the leadoff batter in the top of the ninth and then retired

BIG COHO OFF VICTORIA

Encouragement for Victoria anglers is this 17 1/2-pound coho salmon caught near Brothie Ledge Wednesday evening by Bob Bentham, 2614 Avebury. Fishing in area for first time, Bentham made catch on minnow, used with four ounces of weight and 100 feet of line. It is one of largest coho landed near Victoria this season.—(Photo by Bill Boucher.)

LLOYD HAD HIS BREAKS, AND ALL OF 'EM HURT!

VANCOUVER (CP)—When he recovers, Lloyd Kishino of Toronto may be convinced somebody is putting a jinx on him every time he enters a swimming championship.

At the Canadian championships here last year, the Etobicoke club swimmer went for a ride on a motorcycle. It crashed and Lloyd withdrew from the championships.

At the British Empire Games trials in Montreal in April this year, he had to withdraw again — sprained ankle.

Lloyd came to Vancouver again this week determined to break the 110-yard butterfly record at this year's Canadian championships.

Wednesday the lid of a car trunk collapsed on his head and sent him off to hospital with concussion.

Canadian Pair Still Alive in Ladies' Event

DARIEN, Conn. (UPI)—Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., seeking to regain the U.S. national women's amateur golf championship she won in 1956, faced Marge Mason of Ridgewood, N.J., today in the fifth round match of the tournament. Two Canadians, including Mrs. Streit, were among the 16 survivors following Wednesday's double round. Five other Canadian women were eliminated.

Miss Neudorf of Toronto has the unenviable assignment of meeting perky Joanne Gunderson of Seattle, 19-year-old defending champion who had no trouble Wednesday in disposing of Miss Darling, 4 and 3. Miss Neudorf would have to pull the upset of the tournament to get past Miss Gunderson.

Texans Reach Babe Ruth Second Round

VANCOUVER (CP)—El Paso lefthander Ed Wilson struck out 13 batters Wednesday night as the Texans defeated the Pacific northwest titleholders 6-1 in the windup game of first-round play in the 1958 Babe Ruth League world series.

Wilson's strikeout total marked a new high in the series so far as he set the Washington team down on two singles. The only run off him came in the sixth and was unearned.

El Paso now joins Massapequa, N.Y., Charlotte, N.C., and Berkeley, Calif., in Friday night's semifinal. Massapequa defeated Owensboro 8-0 in Wednesday's opener.

Righthander Russ Meyer allowed only three hits in pitching Massapequa to its victory over Owensboro. He struck out seven.

BREAKS RECORD

Who Needs Training? Says Bill

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bill Slater Vancouver 18-year-old, breezed through a grueling 1,650 yards of water Wednesday night to set a Canadian swimming record. Then he stepped from Empire Pool as fresh as a daisy and said he hadn't trained for it.

Slater, a Canadian representative at the 1956 Olympic Games and this year's British Empire Games, swam the distance in 19:21.6, nearly 25 seconds better than his own Canadian record for the 55-yard pool.

Apartment for a playful splash at last week's Kelowna Regatta, it was his first swim since he left the Cardiff games three weeks ago.

JUNIOR MARKS FALL

Two Canadian junior records fell in heats of the age group events for boys aged 15 and 16. Richard Pound of Montreal nipped 4/5 seconds off the 110-yard freestyle mark with a time of 1:01.8 and Mike Corrigan of Seattle posted a record 2:44.0 in the 220-yard individual medley, 2.8 seconds better than the old mark.

A group of speedy youngsters from Portland, Ore., scored best times in 11 of 25 age group events.

Spahn Routed As Milwaukee Margin Trimmed

By UP International
Okay, so the Dodgers won't be in the World Series and if they keep fiddling around they can lose it up for Milwaukee, too.

The Braves can't understand it. They hold a season edge over every club in the National League except those drafted Dodgers, who now have beaten them 12 out of 18 times this year.

Walt Alton's crew clinched the season's series Wednesday night with a 2-1 victory over the Braves that sliced their lead to 5 1/2 games. It was the Dodgers' third straight win over Milwaukee and entrenched them a bit more solidly in fourth place.

BIG BLOWS
Braves staked Warren Spahn to a one-run lead in the first inning when Hank Aaron doubled to score Eddie Mathews. But the Dodgers bounced back with a pair in the fifth on Joe Pignatano's homer, a walk and Norm Larker's triple.

Rookie Stan Williams held the Braves to six hits in winning his ninth game while Spahn gave up four hits in seven innings en route to his ninth loss. Williams ran into trouble with two out in the ninth when two men got on but Johnny Klippstein came in and struck out Del Rice to end the game.

Willie Jones had his best night of the season by driving in eight runs in Philadelphia's 12-2 victory over St. Louis, and San Francisco nipped Cincinnati, 4-3. Pittsburgh won the opener of a double-header, 4-1, while Chicago scored a 5-2 triumph in the nightcap which was called because of rain in the bottom of the fifth.

YANKS WAKE UP
The Yankees ended a four-game losing streak and all talk of possible panic with a 7-1 win over the Indians; the Tigers also gained a 7-1 decision over Washington Senators while Baltimore beat Kansas City, 4-3, and the White Sox won their seventh straight American League game by defeating the Red Sox, 10-8.

Jones did all his damage against the Cardinals with a pair of three-run homers and a two-run double, all of which enabled Robin Roberts to coast to his 13th victory. Harry Anderson also homered for the Phils.

Stan Musial tied Mel Ott's National League record for total extra bases at 2,165 when he doubled in the first inning.

STUART CONNECTIONS
Dick Stuart's 11th homer with one on helped the Pirates to their opening game victory over the Cubs.

Yogi Berra pulled the Yankees out of the doldrums when he drove in three runs with a pair of homers off rookie Gary Bell of the Indians. That kept New York 10 1/2 games in front of the second-place White Sox.

Junior Rocks Face 'Bellies Again Tonight

Victoria's Junior Shamrocks will be in New Westminster tonight, seeking to maintain their mastery over New Westminster Junior Salmonbellies in their two-game, total-point series for the coast junior lacrosse championship.

The Rocks will carry a four-goal advantage into tonight's game as a result of their 10-6 victory Tuesday over the 'Bellies at Memorial Arena.

Winner of the series will play at Trail over the Labor Day weekend for the right to represent B.C. in the Minto Cup series for the Canadian championship later in September.

Ted Shows Yanks Lefty Can Do It

United Press International
BOSTON — A tall, husky Canadian named Edward Oliver (Ted) Bowsfield is the American League's latest Yankee killer.

Yet, a little more than one month ago, the six-foot, one-inch 190-pound Penticton, B.C., resident was displaying his wares for Minneapolis in the American Association.

Today, Bowsfield, only 22, has chalked up two straight victories for the Boston Red Sox—both against league-leading New York. Ted first turned the trick nine days ago in Yankee Stadium. He made it two in a row last Friday at Boston's Fenway Park.

The latter feat was exceptional in that Bowsfield is a lefty and winning left-handers at the claustrophobic Red Sox home park—particularly against the Yankees—are as rare as World Series tickets in October.

Bowsfield's two Yankee clipsping rate him with Chicago's Billy Pierce as the only starting hurler to turn such a trick this season. Cleveland's Dick Tomaneck has beaten New York three times, but two of the decisions came in relief roles.

Bowsfield, one of the infrequent Canadians to make the big leagues, takes his success, in stride, crediting others. He's quick to point up the abilities of catcher Sammy White, a veteran of eight years with the Red Sox.

Bowsfield has a good fast ball and an extremely good slider. Yankee pilot Casey Stengel refers to him as "that feller who throws the grounder balls," referring in typical Stengelse to Bowsfield's ability to force batters into hitting ground balls.

Ted was called up from Minneapolis in the middle of last month as the Red Sox pitching staff took one bad turn after another.

RAINIERS ON MARCH

Lowly Clubs Roast PCL's Upper Crust

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
The second division gave the Pacific Coast League's top four clubs a rough shuffle last night with Spokane's 7-4 rout of the first-place Phoenix Giants the top eye-opener.

In other games, last-place Seattle dumped the fourth-place Portland Beavers 6-5; seventh-place Sacramento edged the third-place Vancouver Mounties 3-2; and the fifth-place Salt Lake City Bees trounced second-place San Diego 5-2.

The Indians grabbed an early 2-0 lead over Phoenix and were never headed as Art Fowler set the Giants down on nine hits.

Fowler ran his record to 14-10 in working the full nine innings. He struck out six batters and walked three.

Roger Osenbaugh, Sacramento's tall right-hander, was the winner over the Mounties. He gave up nine scattered hits and the two runs the Mounties scored both were flukes.

The first came in the third frame on three walks and a wild pitch. The second came in the fifth on a single, a sacrifice and an infield out. Buddy Peterson raced from second to home on the infield out.

Seattle's victory over Portland was the sixth straight for the Rainiers, who pounded out 16 hits in tagging Portland starter Larry Jansen with his 10th loss in 18 decisions. Max Surkont won it, although he needed help from Jim Davis in the eighth.

Eddie Kazak accounted for Seattle's first run with a second-inning homer and Dick Dittusa clubbed out another homer in the sixth frame to account for the Rainiers' final run.

Portland got two runs in the seventh on a wild pitch. Bob Diptero's double and George Freese's single but the rally fell one run short.

Vereb Returns

VANCOUVER (CP)—Import quarterback-backback Pete Neft packed his bags and departed from the B.C. Lions Wednesday leaving the Western Interprovincial Football team with just 17 imports on the roster.

The number will be back to 18 Friday when Ed Vereb, starchy back who has just got out of the U.S. Army, reports. Vereb will start at left half Monday when Lions meet Calgary Stampede here.

Paul Cameron and Don Vic, who missed Monday's 42-0 slaughter of Lions in Calgary, will be back in action Monday, along with kicking ace Vic Chapman.

Engineers' Union Told to Reform

FOREST PARK, Pa. (AP)—The AFL-CIO Wednesday ordered the scandal-tainted International Union of Operating Engineers to institute a series of sweeping reforms or face expulsion.

The executive council ruled that the 285,000-member union has made some progress toward cleaning up corruption revealed in Senate racketeering committee hearings, but still has to finish the job.

SIU WILL TRY TO ORGANIZE U.K. SAILORS

MONTREAL (CP)—The Seafarers' International Union (SIU) is preparing a drive to organize crews on Canadian-owned ships operating under the British flag, it was learned Wednesday.

The union, in its periodical The Canadian Sailor, attacks Canada's coastal trading laws and says the support of British labor unions has been requested in the organizing move.

Under Canadian coastal law, any Commonwealth vessel can carry cargo and passengers between two ports within the country.

Mud Bay Garbage Dumping Allowed As Wharf Closed

Privately-hauled garbage may be dumped at Mud Bay, City Engineer James Garnett said Wednesday.

No garbage can be accepted at the garbage wharf during construction of a transfer building there.

Mud Bay is reached by Songhees, off Esquimalt Road immediately west of Johnson Street Bridge. It is being used as a landfill site.

REDEDICATED GRAVE of Amor De Cosmos at Ross Bay Cemetery received family tribute from Jessie Simson, above, niece of the former premier.

HOMAGE TO DE COSMOS

Grave Ceremony Honors B.C.'s Double-Life Premier

A man who performed the feat of being Premier of British Columbia and member of the House of Commons in Ottawa at the same time was honored at Ross Bay Cemetery Wednesday afternoon.

This extraordinary man—the architect of union between Vancouver Island and the mainland—was Amor De Cosmos, second premier of B.C. from 1872 to 1874, and member of the Commons in Ottawa from 1872 to 1882.

His long-neglected grave, scorched by hot sunshine and surrounded by the trees he loved so well, was rededicated in a dignified ceremony marking the 133rd anniversary of his birth.

SOUND FOUNDATIONS

Lieutenant Governor Frank Ross placed a wreath on the restored grave and referred to De Cosmos as "a man who laid sound foundations, not only for British Columbia, but for this Canada in which we live.

"We believe in a government general and in our allegiance to British law," Mr. Ross said. "He worked to accomplish that end and British Columbia is the richer because he lived here nearly 100 years ago."

Tribute to De Cosmos as the first publisher of The Daily Colonist was paid by present publisher Seth Halton, who was responsible for having the grave restored.

"GREAT CANADIAN"

"A few months ago we found this grave in a state of considerable disrepair," Mr. Halton said. "We therefore decided to restore it as a centennial project."

Mr. Halton referred to De Cosmos as "a great editor and what is more important, a great Canadian."

He was introduced by James K. Nesbitt, first vice-president of the British Columbia Historical Association and chairman of its Victoria section, who said: "The Daily Colonist is to be commended in restoring the resting place of a great Canadian."

THREE NIECES

Three nieces of De Cosmos attended the ceremony—Mrs. John Harvey, Jessie Simson of Victoria, and Mrs. J. M. Davidson from Halifax. There was also a great-niece, Mrs. John Watson of Victoria.

Miss Simson, on behalf of the family, placed a wreath on the restored grave.

The Colonist was thanked for its contribution to history by R. H. B. Ker, whose grandfathers, Robert Ker and Henry Heisterman, were contemporaries of Amor De Cosmos in Victoria nearly a century ago.

Present with the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. Ross were Brig. J. S. Adams and Miss Ruth McLean.

CF-105 to Cost $2 Billion If Put in Full Production

OTTAWA (CP)—The supersonic CF-105 jet interceptor program will cost in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000 in the next three years if the government orders the plane into full production, informants said Wednesday.

Such outlays would mean defence budgets of more than $2,000,000,000 in each of the next three fiscal years and, the informants added, a possible consequent increase in taxes. The defence budget in the current fiscal year ending next March 31 is $1,686,000,000.

One authoritative source said the government decision whether to order the CF-105 into full production is one of the most crucial ever faced by a Canadian administration in peacetime.

On the decision might hinge not only the future of Canada's entire defence effort but availability of funds for expenditures in non-military fields. Heavy expenditures on the CF-105 likely would delay purchase of other needed equipment for the navy and army.

It is known that the government dreads the prospect of causing unemployment in the military aircraft industry.

On the other hand, a decision to go ahead with CF-105 production might eventually lead to unemployment in the shipbuilding industry because the government could not afford to carry out its full destroyer construction program.

Fairground Perks As Annual Show Set Up at Luxton

LUXTON — Fair grounds here will start humming tonight with the placing of exhibits for the Centennial fall fair sponsored by Metchosin Farmers' Institute.

HITCH-HIKING REPRIEVE SET FOR SAILORS

DUNCAN — Hitch-hiking by sailors will go unprotected in North Cowichan between Aug. 28 and Sept. 2, when the RCN frigates New Glasgow and Jonquiere will be in Maple Bay.

Reeve C. A. P. Murison told North Cowichan municipal council Wednesday that the 18 officers and 283 men will need rides between Duncan and Maple Bay.

Island Cruise Set for 800 Municipal Men

NANAIMO (CP) — Representatives of Vancouver Island municipalities have whipped into shape final plans for the more than 800 delegates who will attend the Union of B.C. Municipalities annual convention in Nanaimo Sept. 23, 24, 25.

Ald. Haig Burns reported that 730 delegates had registered so far. It was expected the final figure would be over 800, well in excess of the 720 which attended last year's convention at Nelson.

Biggest junket planned for delegates will be a sight-seeing trip to the upper Island and mainland area aboard the Princess of Nanaimo which will include a visit to Woodville and other centres in that area. This is scheduled for Thursday.

Horse Show Slated Sept. 5

DUNCAN — Cowichan District Riding Club will stage its fall horse show Sept. 5 and 6 at the old agricultural grounds here.

Usually held in conjunction with the annual Cowichan Exhibition, it will go on in spite of the fact that the exhibition has been cancelled for this year because of financial problems.

Blaze Quenched As Flames Lick Steps of Home

DUNCAN — Firemen of North Cowichan municipality on Wednesday extinguished a fire that destroyed a shed at the rear of 2582 Dingwall, and threatened the home rented by Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Frajman.

The fire had burned through dried grass and rubbish to the steps of the house before firemen stopped it. It was believed started by spontaneous combustion.

Power Project Forging Ahead

CHEMUNUS — Work on installation of the third generator at the B.C. Power Commission's Bare Point power plant is progressing well, engineers report. Two generators already have been installed and are operative. Parts for the fourth and last generator are arriving daily, and it is expected that both the third and fourth generators will be ready for testing before the end of the year.

HIGH SCORE WINS CUP

Junior Gardeners Show Top Quality

Winner of the Victoria Horticultural Society Cup in the recently-completed 10th annual competition of the Gordon Head Junior Garden Club was Tom Hopkins with a score of 44 out of a possible 50 points.

Runners-up were Sheila Taylor with 41 and Tim Hackett with 40 points.

Winners of the PTA prizes in Class A, 11 years and up, was Tom Hopkins, Tim Hackett and Frances Wightman. Class B winners, 9 and 10 years, were Sheila Taylor, John McKilligan and Kathy Parkhouse.

TOURIST 'ARRESTED' FOR WELCOME RETURN

CAMPBELL RIVER — Most welcome "arrest" of the season was made on Forbidden Plateau Road when RCMP stopped Grant Ekin of Utah to tell him he had left his fishing tackle at a motel here.

Mrs. Len Idien, motel proprietor, had found the tackle, and told police. Mr. Ekin made a quick about-turn to the motel.

Judging will begin Friday morning, and the grounds will be opened to the public at 2 p.m. Program will be as follows: Mount View square dancers, 3 p.m.; horseshoe tournament, 3.30; baby show, 4; queen crowning, 7; folk dancing, 7.30; rock and roll contest, 8; dancing on grounds, 9.

SATURDAY — Parade from Belmont High School, 1 p.m.; official opening by Premier Bennett, 1.30; decorated bikes and fancy dress parade, 2; Scottish dancers' competition, 2 to 6 p.m.; children's square dancing, 2.30; gymkhana, 3; presentation of trophies, 3.30; puppet show and beard judging, 4; horseshoe playoff and ladies' nail-driving contest, 4.30; East Indian stick fighters, 7; ticket draws, 8.30; dance in Luxton Hall, 9.30.

Children will receive special consideration. Midge Baker has donated a special trophy for the best rabbit shown in the junior division, and F. H. Staverman has put up an award for the best exhibit in the junior poultry division.

Peoples Credit Jewellers Ltd. trophy will go to the winner of the most points in the 12-16 age group, and Canadian Bank of Commerce rose bowl will go to the high point winner in the 6-11 group.

CPR Accused Of Not Paying B.C. Gas Tax

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway has been charged here with using gasoline on which no tax had been paid.

The company has been summoned to police court next Wednesday on information laid by Ronald J. E. Kay, an official of the consumer taxation branch of the provincial department of finance.

He alleges the offence occurred between last March 21 and Aug. 1.

Realtors Reject Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — Some 800 Vancouver real estate salesmen Wednesday unanimously rejected proposals for unionization.

The decision followed recent attempts by the Canadian Labor Congress to organize a real estate salesmen's union in the Vancouver area. There are about 2,000 real estate salesmen in Greater Vancouver.

Comfort Allowances Boosted for Vets

OTTAWA (CP) — Comfort allowances in department of veterans affairs hospitals were increased to $10 from $7 a month effective Aug. 1, Veterans Minister Brooks announced Wednesday in the Commons.

CAIRN ERECTED at Cowichan Bay by Native Sons, to commemorate landing of first settlers to Cowichan Valley in 1862 was unveiled this week by James Evans, right. Wreath was laid by James Mearns, 81, at left, son of a member of landing party. Close to 100 persons attended ceremony. Speaker was Willard Ireland, Victoria. — (Flett Studio photo.)

Driver in 3-Death Smash Charged With Negligence

LAKE COWICHAN — A charge of criminal negligence has been laid against Laik Singh, 25, of New Westminster, owner of a car in which three companions suffered fatal injuries in a crash here Aug. 10.

RCMP here laid the charge. They said no decision has been made regarding a court appearance.

The accident occurred at 7.15 p.m. on the outskirts of the village, when the car hit a guard rail and crashed into a power pole. It followed a day-long celebration of India's independence day, held annually here and attended by East Indians from the Island and Mainland.

Jagtar Singh, 20, of New Westminster, was killed in the crash, and Munsha Singh Kangniwal, Mesachie Lake, was dead on arrival at King's Daughters' Hospital in Duncan. Kartar Singh Banghoo, Mesachie Lake, died Aug. 14 in Duncan hospital of injuries.

Because of the nature of the charges against the owner of the car, understood to have been the driver at the time of the crash, an inquest was dispensed with on orders of the Attorney-General's department.

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Armin Hary won the sprint crown of Europe Wednesday. The 19-year-old West German youth won the 100-metre dash in 10.3 seconds for a European games record.

Steady to Open Fair At Salt Spring Island

GANGES — Agriculture Minister Newton P. Steady will open the 44th annual Salt Spring Island fall fair Wednesday at Mahon Hall.

In addition to exhibits in the hall there will be games and rides on the adjoining grounds, and afternoon tea will be served.

A feature of the program will be a demonstration of sheep herding by dogs of W. Evans, now filling an engagement at the PNE in Vancouver.

Judges will be A. Littler, Victoria district horticulturalist, vegetables and flowers; Mrs. J. Kennaird, Saanichton, home cooking; Mrs. Arthur Hardwick, Ladysmith, needlework; Arthur Hardwick, woodwork and model buildings; Mrs. Mayo Jones, Ganges, floral arrangements; Mrs. W. LeFevre, Ganges, flowers and plants; F. Stevens and B. C. Greenhough, dairy and poultry.

CARIBOO CAMELS

Although oxen were commonly used to pull the heavy freight wagons on the Cariboo Road, mule teams, pack horses and even camels were used. In 1862 a German named Laumeister brought a few camels into British Columbia. The United States government had used Bactrian camels like these during the 1850's for transportation over the Californian deserts and that is where Laumeister probably secured them. Thinking they would be at home in our dry belt he used them to pack supplies into the interior. The sharp rocks of the road cut their feet, and they frightened the pack trains of mules and horses. Finally they were turned loose to graze in the fields near Westwood where the last one died about 1905.

Dogs Give Clue To Training Of Children

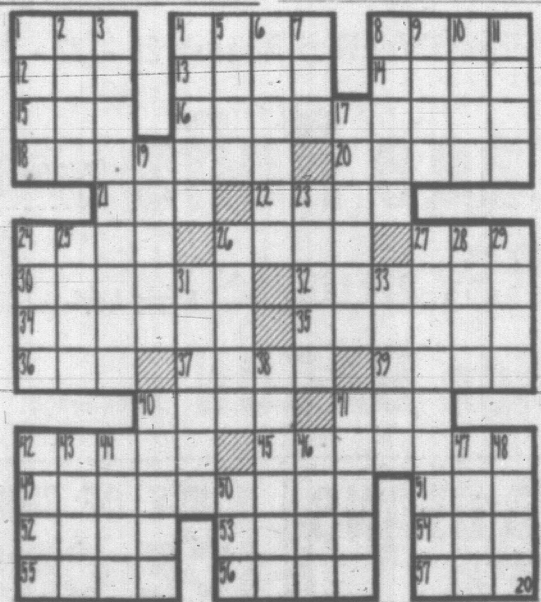

MONTREAL (CP)—Dogs' behavior is shedding some light on the best way to educate children, it was learned Wednesday at the International Congress of Genetics here. Dr. J. P. Scott of Bar Harbor, Me., said a five-year study of five pure dog breeds showed a dog does not inherit its ability to point game or herd sheep. It must be trained. What a dog apparently does inherit is a predisposition to perform the job more readily and with less training. Dr. Scott said he believes humans also have fixed certain characteristics which must be allowed for by an education or training system. Some will respond to reward, some only to discipline, some because they love, others only through hate.

Car Blast Suspect Grilled

AMHERSTBURG, Ont. (CP)—Provincial police Wednesday night questioned for two hours a man believed to have been a key suspect in the car-blast slaying of Antonio Dipasquale. The suspect was later released but told not to leave town. Inspector Don Nichols of the provincial police declined comment on the case, but it was known the suspect was given a six-month suspended sentence a little less than a year ago for stabbing Dipasquale in a fracas involving Dipasquale's wife. Evidence at the stabbing trial was that the suspect and Dipasquale, who was killed Tuesday night when a bomb exploded as he started his car, were good friends in Italy. Dipasquale, 31-year-old father of five children, immigrated to Canada seven years ago.

SLEEPING MOUNTIES ROBBED

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two members of the RCMP's musical ride lost out to burglars here Wednesday. D. H. Egan of Regina and Roger Stranahan of Meadow Lake, Sask., reported theft of their wallets and $60 while they slept in an unlocked motel room. Two other officers in the same room said their money wasn't touched. Merle S. Burke of Everett, Wash., reported theft of $150 in the same building.

ask Andy HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other handsome prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe. Address your questions to "ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times. Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Eldon Smiley, aged 10, of Boise, Idaho, for his question:

Why Doesn't the Male Mosquito Sting?

It is summer and the mosquito attack is in full swing. Their noisy dive bombers invade our patios and picnic grounds, crash our screens and fill the warm evening air. All winter long the pesky tribe has slept in the egg stage, either floating on some stagnant pool or cosy in a blanket of snow. In spring the eggs hatched into wigglers, dining on debris in the water or damp ground. Then they slept for a spell in the pupa stage. After a few warm days, the sleepers hatched into a swarm of winged mosquitoes. It is hard to believe, but this pesky plague could be twice as bad as it is. For only half the brood can sting us and only half can bother us with their buzzing wings. Mr. Mosquito cannot sting us. Nor can he buzz his wings. Compared with his wife he is a fragile, fairly harmless fellow. But this is not from any kind feeling towards us. It so happens that his beak is not strong enough to pierce human or animal skin. Mrs. Mosquito buzzes her wings to attract him. She is the boss and gives the orders. He would never think of buzzing to attract her attention. Mosquitoes cannot bite or chew for they have no teeth. Their mouths are made for sucking and all their food must be in liquid form. The beak is a complex tool kit for siphoning up liquid food. Mrs. Mosquito's beak is strong enough to pierce human or animal skin. So the wretched little vampire feeds on fresh blood. All this surgery is done so gently that, chances are, we do not even feel it. The last tool she uses is the siphon through which the greedy creature sucks up warm, fresh blood. As the anti-clot substance seeps through the flesh it begins to hurt. We get an itchy bump. But by then the little vampire has had her fill and buzzed away.

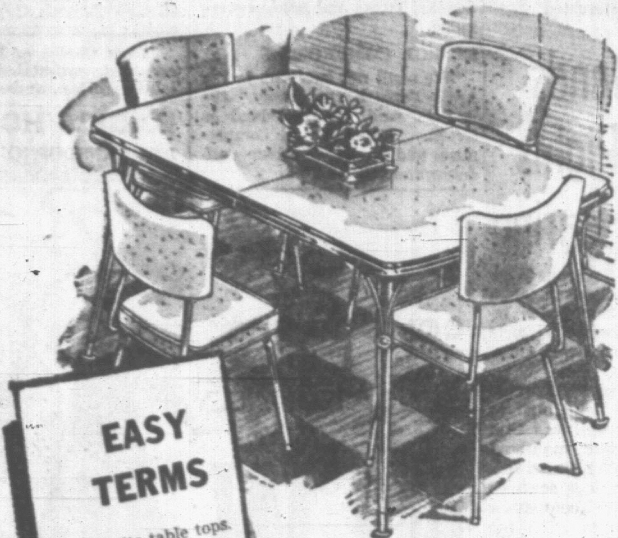

Papa Is a Weakling

Mr. Mosquito's beak is not so well developed. He must settle for plant sap and fruit juice. But, no doubt, he too would feed on blood if he could. Mrs. Mosquito could thrive on a diet of plant and fruit juices if she had to, but she prefers blood. The tool kit in the beak is really a small miracle. The bag is an extension of skin from the insect's lower lip. Inside are two little daggers, two little saws, an injector and a siphon. The whole kit is about an eighth of an inch long and fixed where you would expect the nose to be. There is a pair of feelers, one on each side of the beak. Madame Mosquito zooms around until she senses warm blood. Then she lands, lighter than a feather. The feelers

ONTARIO DROUGHT

Beer Drinkers 'Colonize' U.S.

WATERTOWN, N.Y. (AP)—Some Ontario residents, driven to desperate measures by the declining beer supplies in Ontario because of a brewery strike, raised the Canadian flag here Wednesday and posted a declaration claiming the United States as a colony.

The notice stated that "in view of the ale shortage which is reaching mammoth proportions in Her Majesty's dominion, we deem it necessary to reclaim this colony the United States of America, in the name of Her Majesty, Queen Elizabeth II, by the grace of God. God save the Queen."

Police said there was no immediate call to arms to flush the culprits from area bars and taverns.

BOOTLEGGERS THRIVE FROM DUSK TO DAWN

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Bootleggers here are demanding $20 for a 24-pint case of beer as a result of the province-wide beer strike. It is reported that bootleggers here are doing a thriving business between sunset and dawn.

TORONTO (CP)—A Dutch ship, the Rutenfjell, docked here Wednesday and unloaded 1,000 cases of Dutch beer as Ontario's beer strike went into its 13th day. Union officials meet today with industry representatives who intend to present a blanket proposal aimed at ending the strike.

AA (Oscar Class)

By PHIL LEE

B (Worthwhile)

C (For Rainy Days)

D (To put in time)

(OSCAR CLASS) "THE GREAT DICTATOR" (Capitol)—No matter how you look at it "genius" is spelled "Chaplin".

In this re-issue of his first year-of-the-war film, "The Great Dictator", he does a searing take-off on dictators for all times.

It's billed as a comedy. But for those who have lived through the times of the Axis partners, Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini, the truth peers through the slapstick like the eyes of a hungry tiger peering through the bamboo shoots at night.

There is evil there. And fear. The evil and fear that stem from ego-mania and the madness of the schizophrenic.

In "The Great Dictator" Chaplin plays two roles, that of the power-mad, Jew-hating, unprincipled dictator and that of an earnest little barber in the ghetto who, in the end, turns out to be the voice of the people and freedom.

But it is as the dictator he impresses most strongly. His mad rages, his terrible vanity, his ridiculous posturing are so close to what we have been led to believe is the truth that it hurts. The slapstick and the ensuing comedy only serve to point up the terror more.

IN ONE MEMORABLE SCENE the dictator, learning that he cannot finance an invasion of Australitz because the Jew Epstein won't loan him the money, becomes so insane that he climbs the curtains like a mad monkey. While up there his aide in honeyed tones explains that destiny will eventually place on his head the crown of immortality, "Dictator of the World."

Left alone the dictator slowly descends to the floor and tiptoeing across the room lifts a globe from its axis and does a dance with the world, sending it higher and higher. But in the final phase, just as he catches it to send it ceilingwards again, it breaks in his hands and he dissolves into tears like a bitterly disappointed child.

Another memorable scene is when he is called upon to entertain the dictator of another state, obviously Il Duce—played superbly by Jack Oakie—and the two start out to impress one another. The rivalry in vanities reaches its apex as the two vie to see who can sit higher than the other while in the barber chairs awaiting a shave.

Unlike his recent pictures Chaplin is Chaplin, especially as the little barber from the Ghetto. His dance after he has been inadvertently knocked over the head with a frying pan by Paulette Goddard, his shaving a customer to music, are gems. And it will be a long time before one forgets the scene wherein the man who bites into a pudding with a coin in it must give his life for the cause. Heroes are obviously born and not made.

Only the closing speech is out of date. It was made when we were all naive enough to believe that we could outlaw war for evermore.

See this if you will. By any standard it must be regarded as one of the truly great satires in the history of the screen.

Aerial Satellite Attempt Reported

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Times here says the U.S. Navy has attempted to launch an earth satellite from a plane over the Pacific and twice came close to placing a tiny moon in orbit.

The multi-stage rockets were launched from F-4 jet fighters 50,000 feet over the ocean, the newspaper says.

The Times says defence officials in Washington stated the report was unfounded.

Aviation Week, however, in its latest edition said:

"Initial attempt already has been made to launch a light-weight satellite and other satellites are ready for launching."

Car Buyer Laughs Last

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Finance company man James Ingram repossessed a car Tuesday, but curses the day. Before driving the car off, Ingram put in some brake fluid because the dissatisfied owner told him the brakes were faulty. He then pumped the brakes and was set to roll. And that's what he did—down a steep incline without brakes or horn. The emergency brake failed, too, and Ingram stripped all four gears in an effort to stop the auto. Here's what happened: Ingram sped through five intersections, hit the sidewalk five times, narrowly missed a bus and a cab, and then tried to turn at a deadend. But the car was going too fast and smashed into a barricade around an open manhole. It knocked down a fire hydrant and then crashed into the 11th Precinct police station, pushing the wall in six to eight inches. Ingram was taken to D.C. General Hospital, where he was treated for lacerations of the shoulder and tongue. When he emerged from the hospital, Ingram was charged with operating a car with defective brakes. He posted $30 collateral.

SHOT IN THE HEAD... BUT HE DIDN'T KNOW IT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ronald S. Houston, 30, discovered Wednesday that he had been shot in the head two weeks ago.

He told police he was driving to work Aug. 4 when he felt a blow on the left side of his forehead. After stopping his car, Mr. Houston got out and found a small amount of blood on his head along with a big bump. He believed the bruise was caused by a rock thrown up by a passing car.

Mr. Houston consulted a doctor when the swelling did not go down. He said the doctor removed a lead air rifle pellet from the wound.

MAYOR SCURRELL
... "not interested"

Mayor Stands On City Rights To BCE Hearing

Mayor Percy Scurrell Wednesday quickly disposed of a Public Utilities Commission insinuation that Greater Victoria is out of step with lower mainland communities.

A letter from the PUC stated it "would like to point out" to intermunicipal committees that none of the lower mainland communities holding franchises for B.C. Electric bus services objected to the company's direct application to PUC for general bus fare increases.

The letter acknowledged receipt of an intermunicipal committee protest it had been bypassed by the company because franchise agreements here required proposed changes to be discussed with municipal councils first. The company has opened the way for discussions with civic leaders since the protest.

NOT INTERESTED

"I'm not in the least bit interested in what the mainland does," retorted Mayor Scurrell. "We have a franchise here. And we're only concerned with our franchise agreement."

The mayor added that he expected intermunicipal committee to be appointed as representative for the four councils in time to hold discussions with the company during the first week of September.

He said he hoped the discussions with the company could be completed before the Sept. 8 hearing set by the PUC in Victoria when it will consider the BCE application.

"At this moment I don't expect that it will be necessary for us to ask for an adjournment of the PUC hearing. At least I'm hoping we won't need it," he said.

The PUC offered to consider a request for an adjournment if the municipalities required it to prepare a reply to the BCE submission.

Minister, MLA Quit Duplessis Government

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis Wednesday announced the resignation of Health Minister Albion Paquette and Paul Spence, member of the legislative assembly for Roberval, and said by-elections will be held Oct. 15 in Roberval and Labelle to fill the vacancies.

The premier said both the 68-year-old health minister, who represents Labelle constituency, and Mr. Spence were resigning for reasons of health.

No further appointments for the men were announced.

In making the announcement, Mr. Duplessis also scotched speculation of an impending general provincial election.

'All-Out' War Cyprus Threat

NICOSIA, Cyprus (Reuters) — The Greek Cypriot organization EOKA today threatened action by "every means" to scuttle British plans for partnership government on the island colony.

EOKA leaflets urged Greek Cypriots to "be ready for a big battle against the British plan for Cyprus".

The message declared that "450,000 Greeks are determined to resist Anglo-Turkish collusion, using every means".

The leaflets were the first to appear since August 4, when the outlawed organization called a truce.

The truce brought an end to 66 days of strife in which 152 Greeks, Turks and Britons were killed.

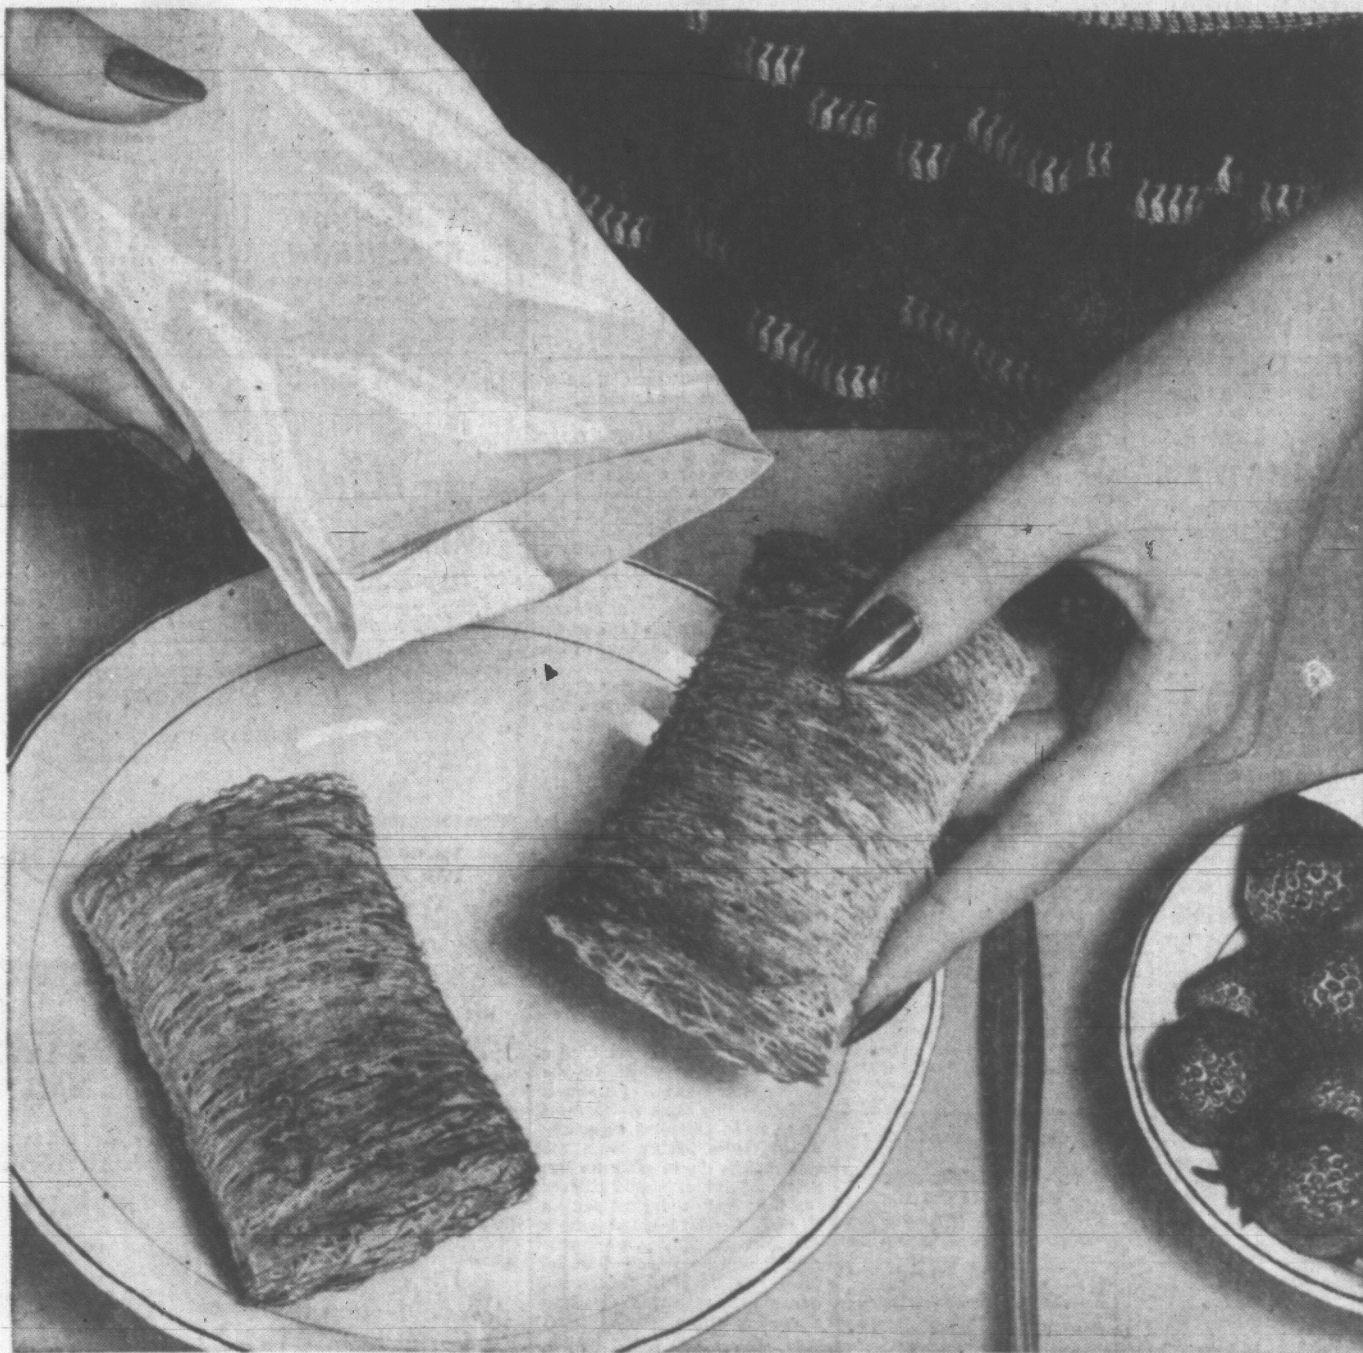

REJECT COMPROMISE

"We shall not succumb to the Anglo-Turkish conspiracy," the leaflets said. "Our island is Greek. We reject all compromise and insist on clear self-determination..."

Addressed to Greek Cypriots, the message said that "you must all be ready for a big battle against the British plan. Nobody should take part in any electoral preparation. Everyone should stand by to obey and carry out orders from the leaders of the struggle."

The British plan calls for the establishment of an over-all governing council of the British governor, four Greek Cypriots and two Turkish Cypriots.

PLEASURE AFLOAT

9 Rules Ensure Safe 'Trailing'

Many of today's boats spend almost as much time on wheels as afloat, and a good many owners are finding out, some the hard way, that there are tricks to "trailing" boats.

"Motor Club News," publication of the Victoria Automobile Club, this month listed the following nine rules for safe handling of trailers, either with boats aboard or any other type of cargo:

(1) When hauling a boat trailer, drive at a slower rate of speed. In this way, if you have to stop suddenly, you can do so with safety. Large boats add considerable weight to a moving car, and longer stopping distances are required.

(2) In turning corners, allow extra room for the trailer. You should also take this into consideration when pulling out to pass and when returning to the proper lane after passing.

(3) Sharp turns should be taken at slower than normal speeds, especially on rough roads as the trailer may tend to broadside.

(4) Make certain the trailer hitch is tight.

(5) Always use the safety chain between the car and the trailer.

Good Lights and Extra Signals

(6) Check stop and tail lights on the back of the trailer.

(7) Use reflecting tape or reflectors as clearance markers on the back of trailer or boat. They will give some protection if tail lights burn out or become disconnected.

(8) A large boat will obscure a car's turn signals. Either install signals on the trailer or give visible hand signals.

(9) A boat may be damaged seriously by bouncing in the trailer cradle. If the boat is secured to the trailer by rope or straps, check occasionally for looseness.

Something else worth knowing is that a long reach, or distance between the trailer hitch and the trailer axle, makes the trailer much easier to handle in backing up. The freight and logging truck drivers you have seen backing up their long trailers with such aplomb really are not having too bad a time.

Here is another wrinkle, passed on to me by a logger friend, and checked by another logger chum as 100 per cent workable.

Mount a second trailer hitch on your front bumper. The trailer can be controlled easier being pushed going forward than in reverse, and there are times when the front-mounted hitch will save both work and worry.

Under ideal conditions the unaided human eye can discern an object measuring 1-7,500th of an inch in diameter.

ITALIAN ROMEOS LEAVE OUR SAILORS IN WAKE

HALIFAX (CP) — When it comes to collecting sweethearts in every port, the Canadian sailor swears he plays second string to no one.

But he's been left holding his own hand here this week. More than 600 Italian sailors are in port, and Canadian Navy spokesmen said Wednesday "it's really something to watch these fellows operate." He wasn't referring to ships.

PLUCKY YOUTH BEATS TIDE

First white man to conquer tremendous tide race at Dodd Narrows in dugout canoe is Larry Attwell, 17, of Everett, Wash. He borrowed 10-foot dugout and braved nine-knot rip tide —without permission of his parents. Father, John Attwell, was proud and shocked at son's daring. Narrows are five miles south of Nanaimo. Larry was unperturbed by feat.

BUT PLUMBERS STILL OUT

Construction Hopes High As Electricians Return

Prospects were bright today that work would start soon on some mainland construction projects, but the long tieup that has stalled progress on a $32,000,000 building program was still far from ended.

Electricians started going back to work after a three-month standstill, but the plumbers, already locked out four months, gave every indication of staying off the job. The electrical workers voted to return to work after they approved an 11-cent-an-hour wage increase. They have been idle since they were locked out May 30.

BY AGREEMENT

Bu. spokesmen for the union and employers stressed the agreement on 11 cents had nothing to do with the recommendations of an industrial inquiry commission set up by the provincial government.

"We came to an agreement through direct negotiation," they said. "It was not brought about by any inquiry commission."

Electricians' pay is now $3.10 an hour. Some 1,200 men were involved.

Meanwhile, the plumbers have not reached an agreement on pay with their employers. An inquiry commission paralleling the one which investigated the electricians' dispute suggested employers give the men a 26-cent package increase, but the companies have refused to offer more than 16.

'SCABS' MENTIONED

They have also threatened to bring in non-union ("scab") labor.

Said plumbers' business manager J. R. St. Elai today, "They won't be able to put them to work because the men won't have the necessary efficiency certificates."

Mr. St. Elai told The Times, "We are not afraid of the companies. They'll be making a big mistake if they continue to refuse to go along with the 26-cent offer suggested by the commission. If they persist in this attitude, we shall ask for 45 cents again."

The plumbers have been locked out since April 30. The official said 82 mainland companies had privately agreed to accept the 45-cent demand, but at least another 75 had refused. He promised to recommend the 26-cent suggestion to the union membership Saturday, "but it's up to the companies to agree to it as well."

Ed Kennedy, top building trades union official in Western Canada, said non-plumbing trades union official in Western Canada, said non-plumbing trades which have no dispute with the employers would probably take legal action to enforce contracts if non-union labor were used in their case.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. How high is the E. & N. Niagara Canyon trestle? A.D. A. It is 260 feet high, 529 feet long and is at mile 14 from Victoria.

Q. Will you please tell me what day of the week May 15, 1892 fell on. J.B.D.

A. It was a Sunday.

Answering a question answered in last week's edition of The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Mr. Maguire, 1521 Amelia, who is charged with theft of gasoline from Gordon Green Aug. 7 attempted to quote law on the matter. The magistrate said he did not wish to hear any further submission. The case was remanded to Friday without evidence having been heard. It was indicated there would be a further remand for one month. Mr. McKenna said after court he did not wish to disclose contents of the affidavits, but that they concerned prejudice toward his client.

Lake Property Sale Urged by Committee

City finance committee today recommended that council adopt in principle a plan to sell its Beaver-Elk Lake property to the Greater Victoria water district for development as a park. The committee also asked the water board to consider the proposal and make a report.

However, the committee knocked out a tentative price tag of $250,000 for the transfer. Mayor Percy Scourrah said that after Victoria residents had paid their share of the purchase price, "the other municipalities would be paying only $75,000 to $80,000."

"That's not good enough," he said. "There's no reason why our taxpayers should be stuck for making such a gift."

Under the plan, the water board would pay for the transfer by raising its rates. Estimated cost to water consumers is an average of 13 cents more on their water bills each month. Mayor Scourrah pointed out that going land values in the area were $1,000 an acre and higher. The city-owned property totals 702 acres.

But committee agreed the principle of the water board taking over the property for parks development and use as a reservoir was worthwhile.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said the price would have to be considered further.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Playfair Queen of Port Angeles, Judy Kish, was due in Victoria this afternoon for five-hour visit with her princesses, Fran Cassidy and Sylvia Sodergard.

They were scheduled to lunch at Eatons to meet with both senior and junior chamber of commerce officials. While they are here they will meet with Miss Victoria, Mary Gibson.

Latest star for Victoria is "A Little Bit Of Olden Paradise."

So said Jean C. Ellington of Tacoma, a recent visitor here, in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce. She described the area as "a paradise" in a note containing money for a centennial silver dollar.

City finance committee today recommended that the remaining exterior walls of City Hall be painted at a cost of $1,328. Front of the City Hall was painted for the visit here by Princess Margaret.

Ald. Arthur Dowell said the building should be painted "because it doesn't look like we'll have a new City Hall for a few more years."

Annual picnic of the Victoria Aged Pensioners' Association No. 3, announced in error in Wednesday's Times as taking place Sunday, was held this afternoon at 2 p.m. in Beacon Hill Park.

IMPROPER, AFFIDAVITS CLAIM

Judge's Conduct Challenged By Accused Man's Lawyer

Improper conduct by Magistrate A. I. Thomas was alleged in affidavits submitted in city police court today by defence counsel Joseph McKenna, acting in a gasoline theft case.

Contents of the affidavits, which were not read in court nor filed as exhibits, were examined in private by the magistrate during a five-minute adjournment.

When court resumed Magistrate Thomas said to Mr. McKenna:

"I reject them; I think they are absurd. They are figments of the imagination."

Island Escapes Worst of Fires

Forest Hazard Explosive Again As Mainland Blazes Uncontrolled

The forest fire hazard in Vancouver Island and southwestern B.C. has reached the explosively dangerous stage of a month ago, and has sent thousands of loggers back to their homes in the face of a full forest closure applied at midnight Wednesday.

Vancouver Island has been fortunate compared to other areas, with its Ash River fire of Tuesday night and Wednesday indicate that the run, now nearly two weeks overdue, has started.

A total of 57 Canadian seine boats, many from Victoria, operating from Race Rocks to Port Renfrew averaged 1,600 sockeye each Tuesday.

Gillnetters averaged 80 sockeye and 65 coho during the first night fishing operation, from 6 p.m. Tuesday to 6 a.m. Wednesday.

A department of fisheries spokesman termed it "good fishing, but nothing spectacular."

BETTER IN NORTH He said the sockeye catches by seiners possibly indicated the beginning of the Adams run down the west coast of Vancouver Island. Sockeye fishing continues excellent in the Johnstone Strait area on the east coast of the island.

The run usually splits at the top of the island, with the majority of fish coming down the west coast on their way to the Adams River, part of the Fraser River system.

Seiners and gillnetters operating in Juan de Fuca Strait transfer most of their catch to fish packers bound for the big canneries at Steveston and Vancouver. Price this year is 28 cents a pound for sockeye.

NO RAIN AHEAD The weather offers no relief from the dry, searing conditions that have turned the forests into potential infernos, awaiting only a match to touch them off.

Here in Victoria weatherman William Mackie predicted temperatures of up to 80 degrees Friday in areas away from the cool sea breeze, with light winds.

Kamloops district had 20 new fires Wednesday and now has 118 burning, probably the highest figure for any one district on any single day this year. There are 484 men fighting the blazes and 27 bulldozers.

At Nelson there were 15 new fires and 94 burning, with 1,086 men at work. Lightning strikes are becoming more prevalent in the whole southeastern portion of the province, foresters said.

3 Charged As Man Falls Into Window Cuts to forehead and temple were suffered by David Thomas, 1240 Richardson, when he fell against a plate glass window at a warehouse at 507 Cormorant, Wednesday at 5:40 p.m.

Police took the man to Jubilee Hospital for treatment, and later charged him and two other men with intoxication in a public place.

The three had been fighting on the street, a witness told police. Thomas was sentenced to 30 days in jail when he pleaded guilty to the drunk charge today.

Unidentified Boat Sighted As Boy Missing 12 Days A boat resembling one in which a 16-year-old has been missing from home since Aug. 10, was seen in the Burgoyne Bay area of Salt Spring Island, RCMP reported Wednesday.

There was no confirmation it is the same craft, nor was there any word of Edward Neil Parratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Parratt, 1843 Feltham.

He is described as slight, five feet, seven inches tall, 122 pounds, blue-eyed, with brown wavy hair.

Saanich police, the RCMP or the boy's home at 7-2749 should be contacted if anyone has information.

3 'Dragons' Battling Out Royals Regatta The annual Royals Regatta opened off Ten Mile Point today with three teams of Dragon-class sailors competing for the Canadian championship.

This year there is bound to be a new champion, as last year's winner, Montreal, is not competing.

Only entries are from Royal Victoria Yacht Club, with Dick Moore as skipper; Royal Canadian Naval Sailing Association, Frank Piddington, and Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, Denny Witherspoon.

Boats are supplied by the host club, and the crews rotate over the series of races, which will continue Friday and Saturday.

On the race committee are Bill Macintosh and H. M. Young, Montreal, and Elizabeth Baess, Victoria. Committee boss is HMCS Oriole, training yacht for HMCS Venture.

Sockeye Riddle: Is This the Run Or Stragglers?

Fair Catch Made But No One Knows

The long-heralded Adams River sockeye run may or may not have reached Juan de Fuca Strait.

According to experts, it is anyone's guess whether or not "fairly good" catches reported Tuesday night and Wednesday indicate that the run, now nearly two weeks overdue, has started.

A total of 57 Canadian seine boats, many from Victoria, operating from Race Rocks to Port Renfrew averaged 1,600 sockeye each Tuesday.

Motorist Badly Hurt as Auto Smashes House

A young Chemainus longshoreman was described today as in "only fair" condition in St. Joseph's Hospital, where he is being treated for severe head injuries suffered in a crash on the Old-Victoria-Road north of Chemainus Wednesday night.

Rae Ordano, 24, of Maple Road, Chemainus, was brought to Victoria unconscious after the accident. A companion, Emily Manke, 17, of Chemainus, was treated at Chemainus Hospital for cuts and bruises, and was released.

According to reports, Ordano's car was going south to Chemainus when it failed to make a curve on the narrow road, and crashed into a house at 10:15 p.m.

Extensive damage was done to the house, owned by W. D. Rolston, and it is understood the foundation was shifted by the impact. The car, a 1950 sedan, was a total wreck.

Bystanders feared fire at the scene when the car smashed two drums of oil and sprayed their contents over the surrounding area. But no harm was done by the oil.

Union Springs Surprise Demand

City Hall's "inside staff" has asked for a new five-year agreement setting up a closed shop and automatic arbitration of disputes by a county court judge.

City finance committee sent the draft agreement to city council today without recommendation. It will be discussed at next week's council meeting.

The proposed draft agreement would not change present wage levels, negotiated earlier this year.

More than 150 employees are included in the inside staff category. Not all are union members.

City manager C. C. Wyatt revealed the surprise move to finance committee. He said the proposed agreement was advanced "entirely on the initiative of the union's bargaining committee."

However, he recommended adoption of the agreement.

Ald. Arthur Dowell and Mayor Percy Scourrah both expressed opposition to the idea of a closed shop.

"I'm against the closed shop and always will be," Ald. Dowell said. Mayor Percy Scourrah said 18 states of the U.S. have "right-to-work" laws to enable persons to work without joining a union.

Mr. Wyatt said that the closed shop would put all inside staff employees into one group and eliminate the problems of some belonging to various unions.

several years ago under which all employees had to pay union dues but did not have to become members of the union.

"This overcomes the problem where some employees get the full benefits of the union without paying for it," he said. If accepted, by council, the new agreement would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1958. It would expire in February, 1963.

Automatic Arbitration Favored "They feel that they should be recognized as municipal employees, not as building inspectors, clerks, plumbing inspectors and so on," he said.

He added that the elimination of conciliation procedures in disputes through automatic arbitration would be an advantage to both sides.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said the proposed agreement would provide certain advantages to the city over the present situation. However, he withdrew a motion that the committee recommend adoption to council when the mayor and Ald. Dowell both suggested it should be passed on without recommendation.

Ald. Dowell said although he was against a closed shop, he was favorable to the "Rand formula" publicized in the U.S.

History Book Bug Bites B.C. Towns

The recorded history of British Columbia has been greatly enriched during Centennial year, says provincial archivist Willard Ireland.

Twenty-eight communities, which to many people were just names on a map before, have produced local histories. Many sold out soon after reaching the stands.

The history of Prince Rupert, written by Dr. R. G. Large, is now in its third printing.

Among other communities which have put themselves on record are Nanaimo, New Westminster, Vernon, Kamloops, Sayward, Kelsey Bay, Dawson Creek, Delta, Gibson's Landing, Surrey, Penticton, Sointula and Rutland. And the list is still incomplete.

In most cases the work has been done by local authors and financed by local Centennial committees. Last year the B.C. Centennial Committee issued a booklet explaining how an amateur historian could go about this task.

HOURS OF INTERVIEWS "Every published history represents hours of interviews, sifting through old letters, church and municipal records and visits to remote areas which once flourished but later were bypassed by community growth," Mr. Ireland said.

"The provincial library is carefully collecting each of these publications. Many of them, bring to light a story of B.C.'s past all too forgotten. "B.C. newspapers, both dailies and weeklies, are also co-operating in the enrichment of our history. Instead of being clipped, these special editions are being bound together in a single volume by the provincial archives."

The official B.C. history has been undertaken by Dr. Margaret Ormsby under commission to the government. Publication is expected in the late fall.

Cyprus Entrepreneur Invites Us To Invest in His Bald Schemes

As if there wasn't enough trouble already in Cyprus, one enterprising Cypriot would-be businessman wants to extend it to here.

And he has tried to enlist the help of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

George P. Dimitriou of Limassol, Cyprus has written to the chamber requesting help in establishing seven businesses in the Mediterranean trouble spot.

Optimistically, he says "I await your reply, and an amount of money paid in advance."

Just in case the chamber doesn't get the idea, the letter is written in French, Italian, Greek and English.

Mr. Dimitriou wants to establish a glass factory, a workshop for rebuilding cars and motorcycles, a factory for "special victuals," a paper factory; a sugar factory—in fact any factory you prefer to set up in Cyprus.

He also suggests a medical institute for longevity to carry out experiments including: (a) "for restoration of the hair to the balds," (b) "for fortifying the eye ball," (c) "for changing the color of the hair," (d) "for the discovery of tooth seed to inject in the mouth and to become a tooth, etc."

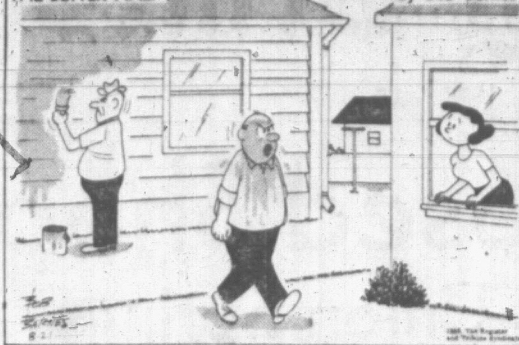

The enthusiastic writer says he will undertake the management of such factories "with a salary we can agree by correspondence."

As far as the chamber here is concerned, the writer gets an "E" for enterprise.

Is it still blue for boys?

Are people still sticking to the old formula of using pink for girls babies and blue for boys? I knitted a pink sweater (my favorite color) for an expected baby in our family. The baby turned out to be a boy and the mother hurt my feelings by kidding me about making it the wrong color. Does this really matter?

Louise Davis

Louise Davis answers:

People are more sensible and practical today than they were years ago when pink for girls and blue for boys were standard. If a mother-to-be has a yen for yellow, she would welcome anything in that shade. If she is given a pink wool sweater and her baby happens to be a boy, she isn't likely to put it away in moth balls for a future son. She will use it for little Kathy and like it. Should the old tradition be still hide-bound, white would be the only sure thing for an expected infant. That would be monotonous unless mother did a little blue or pink ribbon trimming after her baby came. I think you were a little over-sensitive when you were kidded about knitting a pink sweater instead of blue. If you take a peek at the baby's layette, I think you'll discover items in other colors besides blue.

Naming baby girl:

Can a baby girl be given a family name for a middle name, as parents often do for boys?

Louise Davis answers:

Yes, indeed. Using a family name for a girl's middle name is just as popular and correct today as it was generations ago. Occasionally a girl's first name will be a family name too, providing it is suitable.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PINK LADY FRUIT CUP

Two cups bite-size orange pieces (4 oranges); 1 medium sized avocado, cubed; 1 cup diced red apple, unpeeled; 1/4 cup grenadine syrup; 3 table-spoons fresh lemon juice; 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon peel.

Combine fruits and arrange in fruit cups or stemmed glasses. Blend syrup, lemon juice and peel, pour over fruits. Serve cold. Makes six servings.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If Fall Clothes Don't Fit Better Get on Marathon

Fall will be upon us before we know it. In a very few weeks we will get our last year's clothes out of mothballs and begin shopping for the new ones we need.

Some of my readers are in for a shock! Some of the garments which zipped up easily last year may be stubborn because of summer vacation pounds. What an awful feeling when the zipper refuses to work because we stuffed rather than because it is stuck! However, this often happens in the best of families.

If you would like your fall shopping to be fun, rather than a chore, it is not too early to begin cutting down on calories and tightening muscles up with a few figure-molding exercises.

In order to give you a little push in that direction I am going to print two more letters from Marathon winners.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: Before your 8-Week Marathon I weighed 150 pounds. I now weigh 130 pounds. I am 5 feet 5 inches tall. Here are my measurements before and after.

BEFORE AFTER
Bust 39 inches 37 inches
Waist 30 inches 26 inches
Hips 40 inches 36 inches

"I have so much more self-confidence and my husband is so proud of me."

Another letter: "Dear Mrs. Lowman: I am the happiest person today! The marathon instructions seemed so simple that I just did not believe they would work, but they did. When I started marathon I weighed 158 pounds. I now weigh 127 pounds. Before I started my bust measured 35 inches, waist 31, and hips 41.

"I decided to do just the waist, hip and thigh exercises, because I wanted my bust to remain the same. After eight weeks of diet and two simple exercises my waist measures 27 inches, my hips 37."

The marathon booklet gives you exercises as well as a calorie chart for the most usual trouble spots in feminine figures. A combination of diet and exercise will bring the best results, but if you cannot exercise you can shave those pounds off and reduce measurements with diet alone.

If you would like my marathon booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

EVEN IN EGYPT IT HAPPENS!

CAIRO (AP) — You wouldn't have expected the sack to kick up any commotion in Egypt, would you?

After all, murals in the oldest tombs forecast the shapelessness of things to come.

But not even Egypt has been able to take the sack without gagging.

A man came into court the other day, demanding a divorce and custody of an 11-year-old daughter. He said his wife is a bad influence on the child.

The evidence? "She wears these sacks."

Sealey-Carmichael Vows Exchanged in Church Erected by Bride's Family

At a candlelight ceremony in St. Stephen's Anglican Church, Saanichton, marriage vows were exchanged by Norma Lilith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Carmichael, Saanichton, and Eric Carmichael Sealey, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Sealey, Sidney, B.C.

Newlyweds to Make Home In Interior of Province

Planning to make their home in Rossland, B.C., are newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robert Godfrey, who were married Tuesday in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The bride is the former Miss Maureen Elizabeth Baxter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas F. Baxter, of Heywood Avenue. Her groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Godfrey, of Superior Street.

Dr. J. L. W. McLean conducted the afternoon ceremony. Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride wore a gown of white embroidered taffeta which she had made herself. It was fashioned with an unpressed pleated skirt with plain taffeta insert at the centre and a tiny jacket styled with a stand-up collar and lily-point sleeves. Her matching cap held a misty fingertip veil and she carried a bouquet of yellow rosebuds.

Mrs. Ross Sinclair was matron of honor. She wore a tangerine-toned sheath-style dress of taffeta. The sleeveless afternoon-length frock was fashioned with a wide white band across the chest and a matching cummerbund. Her bandeau was of matching feathers. An identical dress in coffee tone was worn by the bridesmaid, Miss Nancy White.

Rev. O. L. Foster performed the double-ring service as his first official duty in the church since arriving from Calgary. Arrangements of all-white gladioli and chrysanthemums were used in decorations for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length gown of white satin, slightly en train, which she designed and made herself. The V-neck and lily-point sleeves were trimmed with hand-clipped Chantilly lace, and a matching satin and lace cap held her lace-edged veil. The bouquet was of red roses and white heather.

Maid of honor for her sister, Miss Jane Carmichael, and the groom's sister, Miss Maureen Sealey, bridesmaids, wore ballerina gowns in princess style of peach taffeta with headbands of matching feathers. Their colonial bouquets were of matching carnations and white heather.

Twin cousins of the bride, Heather and Lynn Nimmo, were flower girls, and wore miniatures of the bridesmaids' dresses in yellow taffeta, with matching feather headbands. They carried tiny colonial bouquets of yellow carnations and white heather.

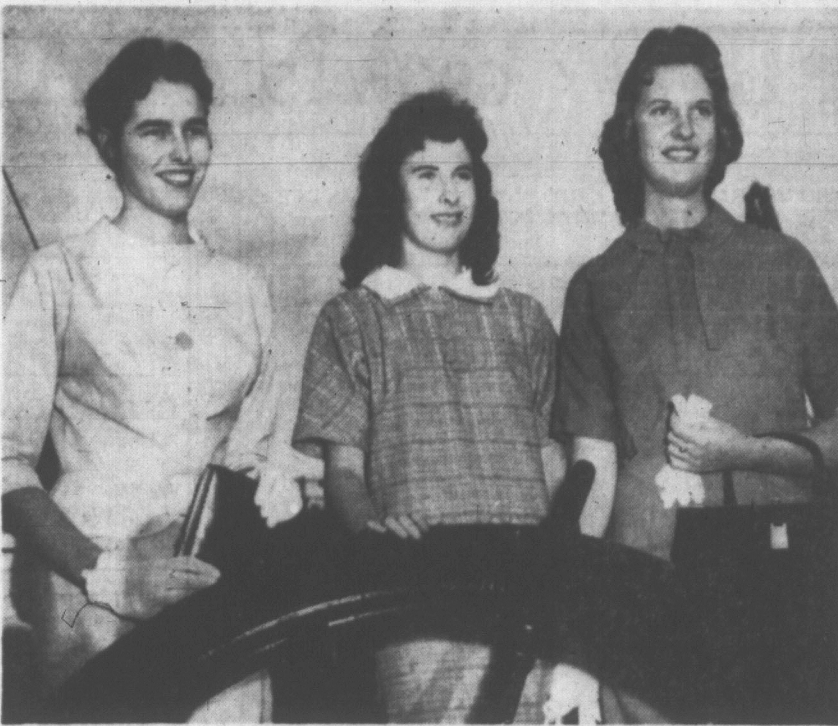

Gordon Jeune, Sidney, was best man, and guests were ushered to their places by Dick Robie, Vancouver, Claude Butler proposed the toast to the bride at a reception in the Victoria Flying Club lounge, decorated with gladioli, roses, carnations and chrysanthemums in shades of red, pink and yellow for the occasion.

Now on a motor trip to the United States, the newlyweds plan to return to Saanichton to live at Calpine Auto Court for a short time.

ISLAND HALL HOTEL

PARKSVILLE, V.I., B.C.

This Centennial year make reservations early. Located centre island east coast, right on wide white sand beach. New de luxe annex now open, large rooms can sleep 2 to 4 persons. Main hotel rooms with or without private bath, some with private balconies, some large rooms for families. Spacious lounge. Excellent meals by good women cooks. For reservations write or phone Mrs. Mary Sutherland, Mrs. Eileen Alfred, owners-managers, Phone 42.

Not just a holiday is the trip to Kingston and Kim Crombie, who plan to stay in the East for a year or two. The girls all plan to visit friends and relatives en route to Kingston.

Plan Careers in Eastern Canada

Three young Victorians are leaving soon for Eastern Canada—one to study, another to go into training as a nurse and another to continue her secretarial career.

Kim Crombie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Crombie, is leaving tomorrow. Her first stop will be Red Deer, Alta., and from there she goes to Kingston, Ont., final destination of all three.

Betty Johnston, daughter of Mrs. Elsie Johnston, 1899 Foul Bay Road, and Jo-Anne Lauder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Lauder, 3910 Lauder Road, are leaving next Thursday. Jo-Anne goes first to Dundas and then on to Kingston, while Betty will visit in Ottawa before going to Kingston.

The girls have been working in Victoria to save money for their plane fare. Kim had a job in the office of a local store. Betty was working at the Royal Jubilee Hospital, and Jo-Anne worked in a law office during the summer.

Betty plans to work for a short time, and then to study to be a medical librarian at a hospital in Kingston. Jo-Anne also plans to work for a few months, then hopes to take nurses' training at a Kingston hospital. Kim's plans include working for the immediate future, then marriage, in the not-too-distant future.

The girls will stay at the YWCA until they find an apartment to share. Length of their stay in Kingston is indefinite, but they hope to make it about two years.

BPW Picnic Up-Island

Members of Business and Professional Women's Clubs from Island points gathered last Sunday at Swallowfield Farm, Chemainus, the home of Mrs. Agnus Jaughin, regional director, for an all-day picnic. Swimming, boating and contests were enjoyed. Mrs. Marguerite Laughlin, Victoria, was convener. Her committee included Miss Nona Rich, Miss Winnie Ellis, coffee; Miss Ella Brett, Mrs. Margaret Benbow, Miss Bernice Harvey, Miss Ruth Adams, program; Miss Marjorie Gibson, transportation, assisted by Mrs. J. Hutchinson, Mrs. Vera Wade, Mrs. L. Wright and Misses Margaret Kirby, Agnes McDuldroch, Jean McQueen and Frances Paterson.

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Aug. 21st — Remember the old fable about the grasshopper and the ant? While the foolish grasshopper spent the summer chirping merrily, the industrious ant stored up provisions for the winter. Then when the first icy blasts swept the landscape, you know who was in a pretty pickle! I apply the moral to many things... yes, even to fashions. For instance, I'm providing for my new winter suit now... in my "Fashion Account" at the BANK OF MONTREAL. It takes just a little determination to set aside a few dollars each pay-day. It's surprising how quickly regular deposits mount up. Why not open your "Fashion Account" at the B of M this pay-day?

THE REASON I enjoy making jam is because my family enjoys eating it! So—soon I'll be having a jam session with peaches, plums and pears. My jam (and jelly too!) always turns out right without guess-work because I follow the CERTO method. Certo is pectin, the natural jelling substance found in fruit. The Certo people select the finest pectin-rich fruit, then extract, refine and concentrate it to give you perfect performance. With Certo, you get up to 50% more glasses because you don't boil the juice away. You keep the true color and flavor too. This failure-proof method is explained in the booklet that comes with Certo. All the recipes are tested and approved in General Foods Kitchens. You can't go wrong!

THE DEEP DEVOTION OUR DOGS GIVE US deserves the best care, in return. And that, to my way of thinking, means DR. BALLARD'S CHAMPION DOG FOOD... because it's a veterinary diet—including all the nutrients any dog needs. Every tin has a constant uniformity and quality, which means a balanced nourishment, always. You'll find your pet shows new interest in his food when it's Dr. Ballard's... and you can vary the flavor with Chicken, Liver and Regular.

Do get Dr. Ballard's for your devoted friend, this week—and watch him thrive on it, with a shiny coat, bright eyes, good digestion and an abounding zest for fun!

Doll Brings Woman Photographer Interesting, Profitable Career

NEW YORK (UPI)—Photographer Dare Wright has turned a childhood toy into "a living doll." The result is delight for thousands of child readers and a whole profitable new career for a tall, willowy blonde who also used to model.

Dare Wright is author and illustrator of "The Lonely Doll," a best-seller among books for the young set, and its just-published sequel, "Holiday for Edith and the Bears."

The heroine of both books is a doll, which Miss Wright named for her mother, Edith Stevenson Wright, the portrait artist and widow of Ivan Leonard Wright, once the drama critic on the Toronto Star.

"Edith" is much like dolls cherished by other small girls anywhere, until Miss Wright turns her camera on its tiny form, little girl face and long mop of straight blonde hair. Then she becomes animated and gets into all sorts of scrapes. Miss Wright believes she is the first to try photographic animation of inanimate objects for children's books. She explained in an interview, that she got the doll for her seventh birthday. It was once a favorite toy, but as she grew up in Cleveland, Edith ended up in attic storage.

Dare came to New York to try acting and said she didn't do too badly—"I had some small parts and some good understudy jobs on Broadway, but they weren't enough to pay the rent."

So she turned to modeling and her face and clothes-horse figure graced many slick fashion magazines. At the same time, mannequin Wright began picking up camera know-how. "I always could draw," she said, "and I knew about light and composition from watching mother. In a sense, photography used all the things I out of a false chignon I had, and started her sitting for the camera."

Mrs. Wright, who is visiting her daughter, said she paid $12.50 for Edith "many years ago... a fantastic price at the time. But it's pretty obvious we've gotten our money back several times over. We're now having her insured by Lloyds of London."

"I unpacked one trunk and there was Edith among all the books," said the author. "I dusted her off, made her a wig ment for a test suspension, with adequate safeguards.

The United States has been conducting a test series in the Pacific. These tests began last spring and are scheduled to end soon.

Russia announced a unilateral test suspension last March at the end of a test series. Britain has been preparing to start a new series of tests in the Pacific.

At United Nations, Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld hailed the Geneva agreement on detection of nuclear tests as a solid accomplishment that may have a significant impact on the whole disarmament problem.

He sent his personal congratulations to the scientists from the West and the Communist world who had negotiated on the complicated, technical aspects of detection since last July. It said:

"Your successful resolution of questions connected with the possibility of detecting violations of a possible agreement on the suspension of nuclear tests will... be a signal contribution in making an effective dent in the hitherto intractable problem of disarmament."

Hammarskjöld called on the governments concerned "to follow through the opening" created by the scientists.

Boxes of whitefish similar to this are opened by the Department of Fisheries Inspection Service. If the fish meets the required standards the box will be stamped "Inspected."

Why the Department is vigilant about fish

Everyone concerned with the fishing industry wants it to grow larger and become more profitable. This is only possible with top quality fish at all times, capable of competing successfully with other high quality foods.

Inspection by the Department of Fisheries—an insistence on good quality—helps the industry in giving consumers what they want, and so helps to sell more fish and fish products.

In addition, educational work, scientific research, inspection of packing and processing plants, and many other operations all combine to help the industry become more efficient.

marry of him. In the past when there have been such huge meetings, trouble has generally followed.

Compounding police fears of a wave of violence was the theft of 500 sticks of dynamite in the last week.

Police have set up round-the-clock roadblocks on roads leading to the Krestova area and are searching all cars owned by Doukhobors.

RCMP say they hope that after the funeral the Sons of Freedom Fraternal Council will discuss the recent offer by Ottawa and Victoria to pay for the sect's proposed migration to Russia.

RCMP Inspector E. S. W. Batty said at Nelson Wednesday: "I am sure they won't go to Russia. I don't think they ever intended to."

And Freedomite leader Bill Moojelski said at Krestova that the government's deadline of Sept. 30 to register for a return to Russia was "designed to defeat us. It is impossible to complete registration of 3,000 people in five weeks."

NO DIRECT EFFORT

Attorney-General Bonner said he had heard from federal officials that some Freedomites have inquired about returning to Russia. "But apart from these inquiries, no direct effort has been made by the Sons to take advantage of the offer."

Premier Bennett, at a luncheon Wednesday, said he was taking the Freedomites "at their word" on the plan to leave Canada.

"I am assured the Sons of Freedom want to go back to what they say is their mother Russia. I believe they are serious and sincere."

He did not think the time limit for registration was unfair. "A longer period and it would have looked as if we were trying to delay the trip; any shorter and it would have looked as if we were trying to rush it."

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: John Frick, 802 Blanshard, and Helga Moffat, 866 Carrie, $35 each for careless driving. Dietrich Otto Rodowski, 127 Menzies, $25 for violation of driver's licence restriction.

Mayor To Probe Police Shot

NEW WESTMINSTER

Mayor F. H. Jackson of New Westminster said Wednesday he will investigate the firing of a bullet at a speeding car by police Monday night.

A constable fired at the tire of a car which had sped at 70 miles an hour through New Westminster. Police finally stopped the vehicle by ramming it.

A 16-year-old youth was charged with criminal negligence.

The New Westminster police commission ordered officers not to use guns except for self protection following a similar incident in July, 1954, when police had chased a speeding car and fired eight bullets at it. One of the slugs ricocheted and fatally injured a passenger.

REWARD OFFERED

VANCOUVER—A $1,000 reward for recovery of $14,000 stolen in the holdup of a "Ter-race, B.C., bank, June 26, has been offered by the Lloyd's of London insurance company.

The money is believed to have been lost in the Skeena River, near Terrace, 450 miles north of here, when a boat carrying two fleeing handits struck a log and capsized.

One man was drowned and the other was later captured and sentenced to seven years' in jail for the holdup.

FISHERMAN MISSING

QUESNEL — RCMP reported today that a man is missing and believed drowned in the Fraser River about a mile south of Quesnel.

Name of the missing man has not been released by police. He is described as about 60 years of age.

Police said the man went fishing alone Tuesday night and has not returned.

NEW GAS VOTE

PRINCE GEORGE — Prince George citizens will be asked to vote a second time on the question of acquiring their own natural gas system.

Mayor Carrie J. Gray said Wednesday a simplified bylaw will be put before the people which, if passed, would give the city authority to purchase a gas distribution system from the Prince George Gas Co.

SOMMERS CASE

Judge Considers Locking Up Jury

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice J. O. Wilson indicated Wednesday he may order the Sommers bribery-conspiracy trial jurors locked up when they return next Monday from a two-week holiday.

The justice said he would discuss it with the nine men and three women members of the panel, but added: "Since the jury's deliberations may be lengthy, it might be better if we provided quarters for them."

The question arose as the judge discussed procedure with counsel. He suggested he charge the jury on the lone conspiracy count against the defendants and then send them out for a verdict on that, without reference then to the other 19 counts of bribery.

Alfred Bull, counsel for Charles D. Schultz, disagreed. He got support from all other defence counsel when he said such a course was a "new experiment" without precedent and he was strongly against it. He submitted it would result in prejudice, since the jury would be likely to bring guilty verdicts against defendants it had found guilty of conspiracy.

Mr. Justice Wilson wound up the discussion by saying he would not commit himself to a given course at this time but would study the matter further.

CONFERENCES PLANNED

VANCOUVER — The CCF and the B.C. Federation of Labor will hold eight "area conferences" throughout British Columbia this fall to prepare for the next provincial election.

Grace MacInnis, provincial president of the CCF, said the party feels an election "may come at any time" and it is losing no time preparing for it with labor.

Selling Wave Hits Coppers at New York

Coppers were hit by nervous selling while oils remained up in a higher market at New York today. Trading was quiet.

Selling hit the coppers on news that the U.S. house of representatives had voted tentatively to kill the $500,000,000 minerals subsidy bill but steady after some sharp setbacks. (Shortly afterwards the house voted formally to keep the measure under consideration.)

Oils kept their gains. Texas Co. Getty and Gulf Oil rose well over a point apiece. Good gains were also made by Royal Dutch and Standard Oil (New Jersey). The Toronto market remained ahead today but was slightly easier in last hour in light trading.

Western oils were the only section to maintain forward progress. They were ahead almost one-half point on index.

AT TORONTO base metals retained more than a half-point edge while industrials were up about one-quarter point. Gold was up less than one-quarter point.

Senior mines eased slightly in the hour with Steep Rock losing its gain in returning to 11. Labrador and Noranda each were half-point winners and Hudson Bay was up 1/4 at 49 1/2.

In gold, Hollinger joined Kerr-Addison, each up 1/4 point, but several juniors lost their early penny gains and Dome was down 1/4 at 15 1/2.

AT NEW YORK International Nickel and McIntyre Porcupine each gained 1/4 among Canadian issues. Distillers Seagrams and Walker Gooderham each advanced 1/4. Hudson Bay Mining rose 1/4. On the American exchange, Shawinigan was off a point. Eureka and Sapphire petroleum were up 1/16. Richwell dropped 1/16.

AT MONTREAL the market was generally higher mostly in a fractional range in moderate trading today. Papers and heavy industrials were strong. Atlas Steel gained a point at 22 and International Nickel at 80 was up 1/4. Anglo-Canadian Pulp gained 1/4 at 31 1/2 and Price improved 1/4 to 42 1/2.

Signs of weakness appeared in the utilities and refining oils pipelines.

AT LONDON industrial shares attracted most attention on the stock exchange today and made widespread advances. Steels were in renewed demand.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market was dragged from previous sessions and prices moved narrowly. There was evidence of export interest with reports of small sales to the United Kingdom.

Lakehead prices for class two, IWA and domestic wheat were up one-quarter cent from Wednesday.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A hotel clerk's throat was slashed Wednesday by a man who became angry because he missed an elevator.

Fourteen sutures were required to close a wound in the throat of Charles V. Rowan, 66. He was released from hospital after treatment.

Police later charged Robert Henry Sinclair, 68, with wounding.

Witnesses told police a man lost his temper when he missed the elevator in the hotel.

Mid-East Peace
Formula Ready
For UN Approval

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The Arab countries, including Lebanon and Jordan, today gave final approval to a Middle East peace formula expected to bring a quick end to the emergency session of the UN General Assembly.

The plan, agreed on tentatively Wednesday in a rare demonstration of Arab harmony, appeared headed for unanimous adoption later today in the 81-nation assembly.

The heads of the 10 Arab delegations agreed at a private meeting this morning to submit the four-point resolution endorsed by their governments in overnight consultations.

The general debate in the assembly was suspended after a short morning session to give time for distribution of the resolution. It was to be taken up at an afternoon session.

UN officials expected to push on for a vote either this afternoon or at a night meeting.

These were understood to be the main points in the Arab plan:

1. Reaffirmation of Arab League pledges against non-interference in the affairs of other Arab countries.

2. A request to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to set up the necessary arrangements to make possible the early withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon and British forces from Jordan.

3. A ban on inflammatory broadcasts beamed from one Arab capital to another.

4. An economic development plan along the lines proposed by President Eisenhower in his broad Middle East program, and also suggested by Hammarskjöld.

5. A request for Hammarskjöld to report back by Sept. 30 to the assembly, which will then be in its regular fall session.

The Soviet-led members might not accept it in an assembly vote, it was conceded, but with the Western and middle powers ready to endorse the Arab plan backed up by the African and Asian members, the assembly would be close to unanimity.

He ignored the provocation by Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko earlier in the day that Israel should make its position known publicly in what the Russian called "a mysterious intimidation campaign" to the effect that if British troops got out of Jordan, Israel might attack that Arab state on its eastern border.

The prospect that Israel might come out with a protest against a Middle East solution tailored to the Arab viewpoint faded Wednesday night when Israeli ambassador Abba Eban talked only in general terms about the Arabs' rights.

He did say that the first requirement for a long-term solution in the Middle East must be universal respect for the political independence and territorial integrity of all states—meaning such a non-Arab one as Israel.

It was expected to be circulated among all delegations some time today in its final wording.

What Ottawa Would Do
If War Ever Comes

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced in the Commons the broad outline of a decentralized federal system of government to carry on in event of war.

He prefaced his statement by saying it should not be taken as indicating any "greater fear" of the possibility of war.

He said he hopes "very shortly" to apportion each provincial government to discuss the proposed new setup.

WORK WITH OTHERS

The emergency decentralized system would be based upon a nucleus of civilian and military authorities in Ottawa and a number of "dispersal locations" outside the capital. They would work closely with authorities representing various other regions.

The concept of a decentralized system would include regional and "zonal" elements. These zonal elements would be smaller in size than a province but would be larger than the limits of one municipality.

Mr. Diefenbaker was speaking during Commons consideration of spending estimates for the federal district commission, soon to be replaced by a national capital commission.

He said it would be "inappropriate" to give further details of regional and zonal arrangements in advance of discussions with the authorities concerned.

Broadly, the concept outlined by Mr. Diefenbaker was that authority would be delegated to federal officers, who would receive co-operation from provincial and municipal governments. All these plans, he said, are in a "flexible state."

It was the intention to have the regions correspond where possible with provincial boundaries. The decentralized system would be sufficiently broad to accommodate considerable variation in application. Adjustments could also be made in respect of civil defence requirements.

Mr. Diefenbaker said that in the event of war it was regarded as almost inevitable that the North American continent would come under heavy attack, which would reach "full intensity" almost immediately.

Therefore it was "only prudent" to make plans now to carry on the government.

He wanted to stress that there was no "greater fear" of war implied in his statement, but it was the administration's responsibility that the organization be ready.

Mayor Opposes Surprise Move

City Hall's "inside staff" has asked for a new five-year agreement setting up a closed shop and automatic arbitration of disputes by a county court judge.

City finance committee sent the draft agreement to city council today without recommendation. It will be discussed at next week's council meeting. The proposed draft agreement would not change present wage levels, negotiated earlier this year.

More than 150 employees are included in the inside staff category. Not all are union members.

City manager C. C. Wyatt revealed the surprise move to finance committee. He said the proposed agreement was advanced "entirely on the initiative of the union's bargaining committee."

However, he recommended adoption of the agreement.

Ald. Arthur Dowell and Mayor Percy Scurrell both expressed opposition to the idea of a closed shop.

"I'm against the closed shop and always will be," Ald. Dowell said.

Mayor Percy Scurrell said 18 states of the U.S. have "right-

Mr. Wyatt said that the closed shop would put all inside staff employees into one group and

Agreement Reached at Atom Parley
As U.S. Reported Ready for Ban

GENEVA (AP) — The East-West conference on nuclear test control ended today after recommending a worldwide system of inspection stations to police any future agreement to ban nuclear weapon tests.

The conference, which began seven weeks ago, was confined strictly to scientific questions. The Western delegates were instructed to hold no negotiations toward agreement on a test ban, but only to make recommendations to the governments on how such a ban could be policed.

Advance word of the agreement was followed by a report in Washington Wednesday night that the United States is about ready to announce a temporary suspension of nuclear weapon tests.

Russia announced a test suspension last March. Britain, the third atomic-arms power, is preparing to start a new series of tests in the Pacific.

The experts urged that control station staffs should have complete freedom of movement for on-the-spot investigations, and that stations should be set up at sea as well as on land.

FEASIBLE WITHIN LIMITS

An announcement said the combined use of the various known methods for detecting nuclear explosions could make control of a test ban feasible "within certain specific limits."

The chairman of the Senate disarmament subcommittee welcomed the report that the U.S. is about ready to announce a temporary suspension of nuclear weapons testing.

Democratic Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota said in an interview that his staff has been informed such a step is under consideration.

"A temporary suspension on our part as a prelude to negotiation of a safeguarded agreement would be good, sound public policy," Humphrey said, "It would win us friends around the world, and put us out in front in the disarmament field."

The White House declined either to confirm or deny the report, which came Wednesday night from an informed source.

SEEK PERMANENT BAN

The source, asking to remain anonymous, said the U.S. government hopes a temporary halt might pave the way to a permanent international agree-

'All-White School'
For Little Rock

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Superintendent Virgil Blossom said today that Central High School will open Sept. 2 "as an all-white high school."

The superintendent said it is "wonderful news" when advised that the U.S. Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals had granted a stay of its own order wiping out a 2½-year delay in integration at the school.

The stay leaves the delay in effect until the U.S. Supreme Court rules on the matter. The school board has three months to file its appeal.

"This should give us a chance to work things out on an orderly basis," Blossom said.

Governor Orval Faubus instructed his executive aide to "let the stand-by call for the legislature go on out" despite the Appeals Court decision.

Earlier, the governor told a press conference he had put out a stand-by call for lawmakers that possibly would bring them into special session Monday.

Under questioning he said one of the possibilities was that under conditions — such as troop occupation and forced integration — the legislature might act to close Central High School permanently.

QUIET BIRTHDAY

Margaret Picnics On Scottish Moor

BALLATER, Scotland (Reuters)—Princess Margaret today celebrated her 28th birthday quietly on the rugged Scottish moors she has known and loved since childhood.

The Princess went for a picnic with the Queen and the other members of the Royal Family on the shores of Loch Muick, not far from Balmoral Castle.

Prince Philip organized a session of trout fishing as the weather cleared after the picnic lunch. Fishing is a popular pastime with the Queen Mother.

Margaret—just back from her trip to Canada—has celebrated every birthday in Scotland.

First member of the Royal Family to be born in Scotland since Charles I in 1600, Margaret spent her first seven birthdays at her birthplace, Glamis Castle. Every one since has been celebrated at Balmoral.

eliminate the problems of some belonging to various unions.

"They feel that they should be recognized as municipal employees, not as building inspectors, clerks, plumbing inspectors and so on," he said.

He added that the elimination of conciliation procedures in disputes through automatic arbitration would be an advantage to both sides.

Ald. A. I. Curtis said the proposed agreement would provide certain advantages to the city over the present situation.

However, he withdrew a motion that the committee recommend adoption to council when the mayor and Ald. Dowell both suggested it should be passed on without recommendation.

Ald. Dowell said although he was against a closed shop, he was favorable to the "Rand formula" publicized in the U.S. several years ago under which all employees had to pay union dues but did not have to become members of the union.

"This overcomes the problem where some employees get the full benefits of the union without paying for it," he said.

If accepted by council, the new agreement would be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1958. It would expire in February, 1963.

INSURANCE FUND LOW

BY VICTOR J. MACKIE

OTTAWA—A grave warning that the unemployment insurance fund reserve has been reduced below "the standard accepted by the authorities as safe" is contained in the report of the unemployment insurance advisory committee tabled in the Commons.

A heavy drain on the fund was caused by the extension of seasonal benefits last winter and by the inclusion of fishermen in the fund.

It is suggested in the report that the government treasury make good the drain on the fund.

CBRE AT ODDS

It was not immediately known what action will be taken by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees which has come out flatly against the report of the federal board.

The CBRE is the largest of the 15 unions engaged in the $100,000,000-a-year fight.

"The decision was taken by the representatives of the 16 non-operating unions after a day and a half spent discussing the majority report," said Frank H. Hall, chairman of the joint negotiating committee and head of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Clerks (CLC).

His reference to all 15 unions—thus including the CBRE—was viewed as meaning the decision was unanimous.

The letter to Mr. Starr was expected to incorporate some of the CBRE's criticism of the conciliation findings. Mr. Hall said the letter would be sent "immediately."

The next step is up to the railways, who have not revealed their stand on the conciliation report. The CPR and CNR have said what if the recommended wage increases were extended to all railway employees the annual bill would amount to $60,000,000, which could lead to a bid before the board of transport commissioners for a 35 per cent increase in freight rates.

'MOST SPECTACULAR BET'

Three-Horse Parley Returns $168,000

LONDON (Reuters)—A racehorse named Gladness won by six lengths at York Wednesday—and completed a fantastic three-horse parley that netted an English bettor some £60,000 ($168,000).

The William Hill bookmaking firm disclosed the story today, revealing Yorkshire merchant John Robinson as the winner of this "most spectacular bet of the century."

A few months ago, Robinson checked the entries and decided he would back Epaulette at Goodwood July 29, Bahur at Redcar Aug. 9 and Gladness at York Aug. 20.

The odds at that time were 25 to 1 on Epaulette, 20 to 1 on Bahur and 20 to 1 on Gladness.

At those fixed odds, Robinson registered six bets: £5 on the nose of Epaulette, with the winnings, if any, to go on the nose of Bahur; $5 to place on Epaulette, any profits likewise booked to Bahur; a similar two wagers linking Bahur to Gladness; finally, a further two hooking up all three horses. This brought Robinson's total investment to £30.

Came July 29, and Epaulette romped home as Robinson had expected. Bahur won Aug. 9.

That brought him up to Wednesday's Ebor Handicap at York—where Gladness was fighting it out with 24 other thoroughbreds over 1½ miles. Gladness won by six lengths.

Cials had visited London and Washington and U.S. officials had come to Ottawa to discuss mutual plans.

The prime minister said that if a war lasted a long time, governmental problems would become exceedingly difficult. There would be tremendous competition for what he called "surviving resources" among various departments and organizations.

The Commons listened attentively as Mr. Diefenbaker spoke. There were no interruptions.

Opposition Leader Pearson said afterwards he regards the prime minister's statement on emergency measures as "a matter of almost cosmic importance" and said that when the Liberals were in power a start on the plans had been made. Such plans had to be kept up to date.

He asked Mr. Diefenbaker whether Canada is keeping in touch with Washington and London on its plans.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the closest possible co-operation exists among the three capitals and with NATO, Canadian officials.

Boxes of whitefish similar to this are opened by the Department of Fisheries Inspection Service. If the fish meets the required standards the box will be stamped "Inspected."

Why the Department is vigilant about fish

Everyone concerned with the fishing industry wants it to grow larger and become more profitable. This is only possible with top quality fish at all times, capable of competing successfully with other high quality foods.

Inspection by the Department of Fisheries—an insistence on good quality—aids the industry in giving consumers what they want, and so helps to sell more fish and fish products.

In addition, educational work, scientific research, inspection of packing and processing plants, and many other operations all combine to help the industry become more efficient.

What Ottawa Would Do If War Ever Comes

EMERGENCY AUTHORITIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Here is the anatomy of the decentralized federal system for emergency government outlined in the Commons today by Prime Minister Diefenbaker:

CENTRAL AUTHORITY—Based on nucleus of ministers, officials and military officers in Ottawa, with provision for operating in "dispersed locations" outside Ottawa.

REGIONAL AUTHORITIES—Designed to correspond with provincial boundaries where possible. Staffed on standby basis by small group of federal officers working closely with "essential elements" of provincial governments.

ZONAL ORGANIZATIONS—Needed at least in larger provinces to cover smaller areas than provinces, but larger than the limits of one municipality. Staffed by federal, provincial and municipal elements.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker today announced in the Commons the broad outline of a decentralized federal system of government to carry on in event of war.

He prefaced his statement by saying it should not be taken as indicating any "greater fear" of the possibility of war.

He said he hopes "very shortly" to approach provincial governments to discuss the proposed new setup.

WORK WITH OTHERS

The emergency decentralized system would be based upon a nucleus of civilian and military authorities in Ottawa and a number of "dispersed locations" outside the capital. They would work closely with authorities representing various other regions.

The concept of a decentralized system would include regional and "zonal" elements. These zonal elements would be smaller in size than a province but would be larger than the limits of one municipality.

Mr. Diefenbaker was speaking during Commons consideration of spending estimates for the federal district commission, soon to be replaced by a national capital commission.

He said it would be "inappropriate" to give further details of regional and zonal arrangements in advance of discussions with the authorities concerned.

Broadly, the concept outlined by Mr. Diefenbaker was that authority would be delegated to federal officers, who would receive co-operation from provincial and municipal governments. All these plans, he said, are in a "flexible state."

It was the intention to have the regions correspond where possible with provincial boundaries. The decentralized system would be sufficiently broad to accommodate considerable variation in application. Adjustments could also be made in respect of civil defence requirements.

ATTACK INEVITABLE

Mr. Diefenbaker said that, in the event of war it was regarded as almost inevitable that the North American continent would come under heavy attack, which would reach "full intensity" almost immediately.

Therefore it was "only prudent" to make plans now to carry on the government.

He wanted to stress that there was no "greater fear" of war implied in his statement, but it was the administration's responsibility that the organization of the government should be planned should that "dread" eventually take place.

The prime minister referred in his statement to an estimate of $150,000 earmarked for preparatory "emergency defence measures." He read from a statement listing various government departments in turn, followed by details of what might be expected from them in time of emergency.

The Commons listened attentively as Mr. Diefenbaker spoke. There were no interruptions.

Opposition Leader Pearson said afterwards he regards the prime minister's statement on emergency measures as "a matter of almost cosmic importance" and said that when the Liberals were in power a start on the plans had been made. Such plans had to be kept up to date.

He asked Mr. Diefenbaker whether Canada is keeping in touch with Washington and London on its plans.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the closest possible co-operation exists among the three capitals and with NATO. Canadian officials had visited London and Washington and U.S. officials had come to Ottawa to discuss mutual plans.

The prime minister said that if a war lasted a long time, governmental problems would become exceedingly difficult. There would be tremendous competition for what he called "surviving resources" among various departments and organizations.

Railmen Accept Award

MONTREAL (CP)—The general conference committee of the non-operating railway unions has agreed to accept the majority recommendations of a federal conciliation board dealing with a contract dispute with the major railways.

The unions, bargaining for 130,000 Canadian railway workers will inform Labor Minister Starr of their acceptance of the report in a letter.

In a brief statement, the union committee said: "The general conference committee of the non-operating railway brotherhoods has agreed to accept majority findings of the board of conciliation and advice to that effect will be sent to the minister of labor in a letter that will outline the union's views on some aspects of the report."

OTTAWA (CP)—Labor Minister Starr today expressed satisfaction that the non-operating railway unions have agreed to accept the majority findings of a federal conciliation board dealing with a contract dispute.

Rare Display Of Arab Unity

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The Arab countries, including Lebanon and Jordan, today gave final approval to a Middle East peace formula expected to bring a quick end to the emergency session of the UN General Assembly.

The plan, agreed on tentatively Wednesday in a rare demonstration of Arab harmony, appeared headed for unanimous adoption later today in the 81-nation assembly.

The heads of the 10 Arab delegations agreed at a private meeting this morning to submit the four-point resolution endorsed by their governments in overnight consultations.

The general debate in the assembly was suspended after a short morning session to give time for distribution of the resolution. It was to be taken up at an afternoon session.

UN officials expected to push on for a vote either this afternoon or at a night meeting.

These were understood to be the main points in the Arab plan:

1. Reaffirmation of Arab League pledges against non-interference in the affairs of other Arab countries.

2. A request to Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to set up the necessary arrangements to make possible the early withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon and British forces from Jordan.

3. A ban on inflammatory broadcasts beamed from one Arab capital to another.

4. An economic development plan along the lines proposed by President Eisenhower in his broad Middle East program, and also suggested by Hammarskjöld.

5. A request for Hammarskjöld to report back by Sept. 30 to the assembly, which will then be in its regular fall session.

The Soviet-led members might not accept it in an assembly vote, it was conceded, but with the Western and middle powers ready to endorse the Arab plan backed up by the African and Asian members, the assembly would be close to unanimity.

He ignored the provocation by Russia's Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko earlier in the day that Israel should make its position known publicly in what the Russian called "a mysterious intimidation campaign" to the effect that if British troops got out of Jordan, Israel might attack that Arab state on its eastern border.

The prospect that Israel might come out with a protest against a Middle East solution tailored to the Arab viewpoint faded Wednesday night when Israeli ambassador Abba Eban talked only in general terms about the Arabs' rights.

He did say that the first requirement for a long-term solution in the Middle East must be universal respect for the political independence and territorial integrity of all states—meaning such a non-Arab one as Israel.

It was expected to be circulated among all delegations some time today in its final wording.

"We might as well state quite frankly that if the Israelis were not supported by anybody else there could be no question of any Israeli attack upon Jordan," the Soviet foreign minister added. But the Israeli delegate made no reference to this approach when he spoke at the evening session of the assembly several hours later.

The evening session was held to clean up the long list of speakers who have called for the floor during the Middle East debate. More were on tap today, but it was felt that when the Arab solution was put into formal language and tabled in the assembly the speakers

Margaret Picnics On Scottish Moor

BALLATER, Scotland (Reuters)—Princess Margaret today celebrated her 28th birthday quietly on the rugged Scottish moors she has known and loved since childhood.

The Princess went for a picnic with the Queen and the other members of the Royal Family on the shores of Loch Muick, not far from Balmoral Castle.

Prince Philip organized a session of trout fishing as the weather cleared after the picnic lunch. Fishing is a popular pastime with the Queen Mother.

Margaret—just back from her trip to Canada—has celebrated every birthday in Scotland.

First member of the Royal Family to be born in Scotland since Charles I in 1660, Margaret spent her first seven birthdays at her birthplace, Glamis Castle. Every one since has been celebrated at Balmoral.

It was here seven years ago that huge bonfires and a gay dance marked Margaret's 21st birthday.

LINDSAY, Ont. — Two women matadors were due today from Mexico for Canada's first bullfight.

Elizabeth Bilbao, formerly of Toronto, and Jean Romain of Detroit will be briefed on the condition and individual characteristics of the six bulls they are to fight without sword or banderillos.

Matadors George Luis Bernal and Gilberto Azcona, both of Mexico City, who arrived July 21, say the bulls are in top shape and pawing the ground in anticipation of battle.

Doing almost the same thing are members of the chamber of commerce who say earlier fears of poor attendance have been dispelled. Town bakeries are making tortillas. Mexican recordings are selling well in music stores and the public library has been cleaned out of books on bullfighting.

In bloodless fights the bull is "killed" when it is so befuddled by the matador that he is able to lean over the horns and slap it on the neck.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — Tilford Townsend is back in court on a moonshine charge.

Townsend is a spry 94, and the last time he was picked up for making moonshine liquor was in 1878, when he was a boy of 14.

That time a federal judge "found me not guilty but gave me a kick in the seat of the pants on my way out."

PORT ANGELES, Wash. — Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court stepped off a snappy half-dozen miles Wednesday at the head of his hiking party and made camp on Cedar Creek shortly after noon.

The hiking justice and about 60 followers are making the trek to dramatize a protest against a proposed coastal highway. Their sponsors are the Wilderness Society and the American Federation of Outdoor Clubs. They are following a route through the wilderness area which would be marred—they say—by a highway.

The only disappointment of the three-day trek, the party advised by radio, is the lack of anyone to argue with over the proposed road.

The chronology runs like this: Five years ago—married. Three years ago—a daughter born. Two years ago—a son born. Last Aug. 29—triplets. And Monday night—twins.

Liberal Challenges Election of Tories

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal J. W. Pickersgill charged today in the Commons that two cabinet ministers — Hon. W. J. Browne and Hon. J. M. Macdonnell — are not legally qualified to sit in Parliament.

He said the two ministers, likely unknowingly, contravened the Canada Elections Act in the March 31 general election.

Mr. Pickersgill said the Election Act forbids any candidate from receiving a salary from the crown. The exception to this was cabinet ministers, but not ministers without portfolio. Mr. Browne and Mr. Macdonnell are ministers without portfolio.

Mr. Pickersgill said that after Parliament was dissolved last Feb. 1 the government had to pay the salaries of Mr. Browne and Mr. Macdonnell through governor-general's warrants because parliament had made no provision for paying them.

He said the cabinet "handed out money to two of themselves

Directors will be named at the next meeting, Sept. 3, at Club Tango.

The society hopes to obtain American and Canadian coast talent in addition to local musicians for the season's concerts.

without any legislative sanction.

The two ministers had received their salaries as election candidates "in defiance of the Canada Elections Act."

Mr. Pickersgill said he was not trying to upset the election of the two ministers but the government had used an "underhand method of procedure" which was "highly objectionable."

CNE Opened As John D. Beats Rain

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker officially opened the 80th Canadian National Exhibition Wednesday just seconds before a thunderstorm sent thousands of spectators scurrying for cover.

The prime minister was piped onto the 350-acre grounds shortly before noon. He reviewed a tri-service guard of honor drawn up in front of the year-old Queen Elizabeth Building and then attended the daily directors' luncheon. A light rain fell intermittently during the opening-day crowd into the buildings, but let up just before the official party arrived for the opening ceremonies.

Still before the assembly, besides the Norway-Canada compromise which makes no reference to withdrawal of the British and American forces from Jordan and Lebanon, is the resolution Gromyko put forward in his first speech in the debate last week. This would have the assembly call for a withdrawal as a first step in any kind of settlement under the UN.

The Arab resolution's wording, it was understood before its formal presentation, avoided any direct reference to withdrawal. It stressed the mutual non-aggression angle to the extent that Britain and the U.S. could see fit to get out soon if all the Arab governments including Jordan and Lebanon agree to it.

Lebanon, it was known, was ready to accept this assurance from her neighbors. It was felt that Britain could put enough influence on King Hussein to bring about Jordanian support.

Sea Lion Killed

MOUNT ALBERT, Ont. (CP) — Daffy the sea lion was reported killed by a train near here today. His body was found beside railway tracks three days after he used a canvas awning to bounce out of his fenced pool and escape the farm of local animal trainer Lorna Jackson.

De Gaulle In Africa

FORT LAMY, Chad, French Equatorial Africa (Reuters) — Premier Charles de Gaulle arrived here from Paris today on his way to Madagascar on the first lap of a 13,000-mile tour to win support for his proposed new French constitution.

A Guiding Hand Rebuilds Family

CASE OF THE C. FAMILY

BY DAVID COWLISHAW

The C. family came to the attention of the Community Chest when the police notified the Family and Children's Service they were arresting Mrs. C. following the death of her baby from malnutrition.

"When we visited the home, we found that Mrs. C. was a slatternly woman in her middle forties, who habitually was more interested in drinking than in looking after her children. Mr. C. had been dead for two years."

"While he was alive he kept his family well. He was an expert carpenter and a good father, being genuinely interested in the children. When his good influence was lost, the family quickly deteriorated."

Foster Homes

"We took into our care a boy of 15 and three girls aged 13, 11 and six. There was some family interest, and within three or four weeks it was possible to arrange for the boy to go to an aunt. Therefore it was necessary for us to obtain guardianship, although we did not have to remove him entirely from family influences."

The three girls were placed in three separate foster homes, since there was no one which could take them all.

During the 18 months that the mother was in jail, the children were in foster homes, and although they were somewhat disturbed because of their uncertainty and unhappiness about their mother, they did form attachments with the foster parents, and did well in school.

"When the mother was released she inquired about having the children back with her, but this privilege was not granted for a further two years."

Made Good

"By this time the older girls were themselves old enough to make their own decisions in the matter, and were reasonably assured that the mother herself had improved in her attitude and manner of living."

"The oldest girl left school after Grade 10 and took up hairdressing, where she did very well indeed. She turned out to be a most attractive and mature young person."

"The second girl did so well at school that, although there was no possibility of her attending university, she took a business course in which she excelled. As a young business woman, she is now a happy and sprightly young person."

The Family and Children's Service is asking for $72,114 from the Chest for 1958. This is an increase of $11,914 over the 1957 request.

Inco Research helps Canada grow

This scale model of an orebody at Inco's Creighton Mine is made of layers of coloured sand and gravel. The dark layer near the bottom represents the higher grade ore; above are layers of lower grade ore and waste rock containing little or no ore. By shifting the flow of these sands, Inco was able to study and adapt an unusual method of low cost mining to this ore, making its recovery economical.

Through Inco Research lower grade ores are mined economically

At Creighton Mine near Sudbury a large body of lower grade ore was known to exist. It promised to be an important source of nickel and copper—if it could be mined economically. But how to get this ore out at a cost low enough to be commercially practical?

Intensive study went into the problem. Underground tests were made. Observing that the earth above the mined-out orebodies had begun to settle, Inco mining engineers suggested the possibility of mining the lower grade ore by induced settling. Ore would be cut away from the underside of the orebody. As the support for the ore and rock above was removed, the mass would begin to settle causing the ore to break up so that it could be drawn off and recovered. The idea sounded good.

Scale models were built to determine how the ore could be drawn off from below without getting the waste rock above the ore. Then the method was tried in the mine. The results were so promising that regular mining operations were begun. Today, Creighton Mine is producing 12,000 tons of this lower grade ore daily. And Inco Research did it!

INCO SCHOLARSHIPS Available For High School Graduates

To help capable and deserving high school and preparatory school graduates get a university education, Inco has established 100 four-year scholarships in Canadian colleges and universities. Twenty-five scholarships have been awarded for the academic year 1957-1958 and twenty-five will be awarded for each succeeding year so that all 100 scholarships will be in effect by September, 1960. LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Is it still blue for boys?

Are people still sticking to the old formula of using pink for girl babies and blue for boys? I knitted a pink sweater (my favorite color) for an expected baby in our family. The baby turned out to be a boy and the mother hurt my feelings by kidding me Louise Davis about making it the wrong color. Does this really matter?

Louise Davis answers:

People are more sensible and practical today than they were years ago when pink for girls and blue for boys were standard. If a mother-to-be has a yen for yellow, she would welcome anything in that shade. If she is given a pink wool sweater and her baby happens to be a boy, she isn't likely to put it away in moth balls for a future son. She will use it for little Kathy and like it. Should the old tradition be still hide-bound, white would be the only sure thing for an expected infant. That would be monotonous unless mother did a little blue or pink ribbon trimming after her baby came. I think you were a little over-sensitive when you were kidded about knitting a pink-sweater instead of blue. If you take a peek at the baby's layette, I think you'll discover items in other colors besides blue.

Naming baby girl:

Can a baby girl be given a family name for a middle name, as parents often do for boys?

Louise Davis answers:

Yes, indeed. Using a family name for a girl's middle name is just as popular and correct today as it was generations ago. Occasionally a girl's first name will be a family name too, providing it is suitable.

TODAY'S RECIPE

PINK LADY FRUIT CUP

Two cups, bite-size orange pieces (4 oranges); 1 medium sized avocado, cubed; 1 cup diced red apple, unpeeled; ¼ cup grenadine syrup; 3 table-spoons fresh lemon juice; ¼ teaspoon grated lemon peel.

Combine fruits and arrange in fruit cups or stemmed glasses. Blend syrup, lemon juice and peel, pour over fruits. Serve cold. Makes six servings.

WHY GROW OLD?
By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

If Fall Clothes Don't Fit
Better Get on Marathon

Fall will be upon us before we know it. In a very few weeks we will get our last year's clothes out of mothballs and begin shopping for the new ones we need.

Some of my readers are in for a shock! Some of the garments which zipped up easily last year may be stubborn because of summer vacation pounds. What an awful feeling when the zipper refuses to work because we stuffed rather than because it is stuck! However, this often happens in the best of families.

If you would like your fall shopping to be fun, rather than a chore, it is not too early to begin cutting down on calories and tightening muscles up with a few figure-molding exercises.

In order to give you a little push in that direction I am going to print two more letters from Marathon winners.

"Dear Mrs. Lowman: Before your 8-Week Marathon I weighed 150 pounds. I now weigh 130 pounds. I am 5 feet 5 inches tall. Here are my measurements before and after.

BEFORE AFTER
Bust 39 inches 37 inches
Waist 30 inches 26 inches
Hips 40 inches 36 inches

"I have so much more self-confidence and my husband is so proud of me."

Another letter: "Dear Mrs. Lowman: I am the happiest person today! The marathon instructions seemed so simple that I just did not believe they would work, but they did. When I started marathon I weighed 158 pounds. I now weigh 127 pounds. Before I started my bust measured 35 inches, waist 31, and hips 41.

"I decided to do just the waist, hip and thigh exercises, because I wanted my bust to remain the same. After eight weeks of diet and two simple exercises my waist measures 27 inches, my hips 37."

The marathon booklet gives you exercises as well as a calorie chart for the most usual trouble spots in feminine figures. A combination of diet and exercise will bring the best results, but if you cannot exercise you can shave those pounds off and reduce measurements with diet alone.

If you would like my marathon booklet, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

EVEN IN EGYPT IT HAPPENS!
CAIRO (AP) — You wouldn't have expected the sack to kick up any commotion in Egypt, would you?

After all, murals in the oldest tombs forecast the shapelessness of things to come.

But not even Egypt has been able to take the sack without gagging.

A man came into court the other day, demanding a divorce and custody of an 11-year-old daughter. He said his wife is a bad influence on the child.

The evidence? "She wears these sacks."
